Santa Claus Welcomed Here By Huge Crowd

Makes Perfect Drop From Plane at Powell's Field—Big Parade Through City—Will Make Headquarters at Rose & Gorman Store.

Santa Claus arrived in Kingston Thanksgiving morning from his home in the northland by way of aeroplane and made a perfect drop off the plane over Powell's field by parachute. He was welcomed by one of the biggest crowds of children and grown-ups which has ever welcomed the jolly old fellow to Kingston. It is estimated that there were at least 1,000 cars on the field and packed along the roads leading to the field while fully 5,000 people from all sections of the county witnessed Santa Claus arrive by air.

As the plane circled over the field at a good height Santa Claus dropped into space and floated gently to earth. In order to avoid the huge crowd which lined the field he was compelled to land at the extreme upper end of the field. The kiddies were present to greet the old gentleman and he was given a rousing welcome with all manner of noise making devices as he floated down.

Long before the time set, 10:30 o'clock, there was a big crowd at the field and as the hour approached the crowd continued to come from all directions. Many people who anticipated the crowd and congestion picked out points of vantage some distance from the field and from there watched the arrival.

There was the Mechanics' Band on hand to assist in the welcome and after Santa had been greeted by the throng of children he was given the place of honor at the head of the parade and escorted by a long line of cars to the Rose & Gorman department store on North Front street. Then there was a parade downtown to the Strand and up Hasbrouck avenue back to the Rose & Gorman store. As many as 100 automobiles loaded with happy children followed the old fellow on his journey through the city.

After assuring the happy children that he would soon return to Kingston and make his headquarters at the Rose & Gorman store he departed for the thousands of other places where he will have to pay a visit between now and Christmas. Santa Claus is expected back in Kingston in a week to receive a visit from all of the Kingston children, who desire to meet him and tell him what they most desire to find on Christmas morning.

Byrd Flying to The South Pole

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—Commander Byrd, flying to the South Pole, must traverse one of the greatest and highest plateaus on the surface of the earth, a far different situation beneath him than when he flew to the North Pole.

The South Pole itself is supposed to be located on a plateau of some 10,000 feet in height, and the average height of the continent has been calculated at 6,000 feet, which is twice the average height of Asia.

Of the five million square miles of Antarctica perhaps less than 100 square miles is not covered by the sheet of eternal ice, which in places is regarded as more than 2,000 feet thick. Exceptionally low temperatures prevail, a mark of 77 degrees below zero Fahrenheit having been recorded once near the coast.

Between Little America and the South Pole is located at least one mountain range which rises above lofty ice-covered plateaus.

On Byrd's North Pole flight the trip was over water, drenched with ice. The "country" beneath the plane was never far above sea level, a matter which enabled the pilot to check his course and locate himself. It will be much harder flying over the Antarctic plateau.

The Antarctic continent is noted as one of the most bitterly cold sections of the earth. Explorers have given their lives to learn its secrets. Most have failed.

Five Cases in Police Court

Four Arrests Over Holiday For Public Intoxication in City, and One Arrest For Parking Car Wrong.

Thanksgiving Day passed rather quietly in police circles in Kingston on Thursday and when Judge A. H. VanBuren held police court this morning he disposed of five cases; four being for public intoxication, and one for parking car wrong.

John Gyzila of Rotterdam, Holland, arrested for public intoxication, was fined $5.

Edward Gurry of Boston, Mass., arrested for public intoxication was given three days in jail.

John Stanton of Barrytown, arrested for public intoxication, was given five days in jail.

John Jones, arrested for parking his car on the wrong side of the street, was fined $5 and John Christiana, arrested for public intoxication, was discharged.

Affirm $10,000 Rev. C. M. Hall Verdict Awarded Albert H. Clark

Appellate Division of Supreme Court Unanimously Affirms Verdict Awarded Electrical Contractor Against Rose & Gorman.

The appellate division of the supreme court on Thursday unanimously affirmed the verdict of $10,000 awarded by the jury last March in an action brought by Albert H. Clark, electrical contractor of this city, against Rose & Gorman, in affirming the decision of the lower court the appellate division for first time in this department passed on the question as to whether a sub-contractor is an invitee in a business place as is a customer. By their affirmative decision the court held that he is an invitee and therefore only the same degree of care is necessary as would be expected for a customer in the store in regard to the question of contributory negligence.

Mr. Clark as a sub-contractor engaged to install some interior wiring in connection with the installation of a sign on the top of the store was injured when several large rolls of floor covering toppled over on him while he was supervising a workman in the store. He had been engaged by the contractor who erected the sign to do certain wiring.

As a result of the injury he was confined to a hospital for a long time with a broken hip and cuts on his head. He claimed a permanent injury to his leg in that there is a permanent shortening of the leg. The accident happened on April 23, 1927, and an action was commenced in negligence in the supreme court. In the complaint $25,000 was asked and the jury which heard the case at the March, 1928, term held before Judge Ellis J. Staley awarded a verdict of $10,000. An appeal was taken from that verdict.

At the time of the accident a large electric sign was being erected on the roof of the store by the Century Company. Mr. Clark was engaged as a sub-contractor by the Century Company to do the wiring of the sign and it was while engaged in placing wires on the second floor of the building that the large rolls of floor covering toppled over and caught Mr. Clark as he was overseeing the work being done by one of his workmen. At that time Mr. Clark was 78 years old.

Judge William D. Cunningham and William A. Kaescher of the law firm of Cunningham and Kaescher, appeared for the plaintiff on trial and also on appeal. F. W. Brooks appeared for the defendant.

The question of whether Mr. Clark as a sub-contractor should not have exercised more care was one of the big points in the case. Plaintiffs claimed that as a sub-contractor he was an invitee into the store and had a right to assume as would a customer that he was secure while the defendant held that he was charged with the duty to exercise more care and caution than would be expected of a customer who was an invitee into the store.

Rev. C. M. Hall Died Suddenly

Former Rector of Holy Cross Church Dies of Attack of Aortic Insufficiency at Bridgeport—Brief Sketch of His Life.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 29 (AP).—The Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church and son-in-law of the late Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic candidate in 1904 for president, is dead here after an attack of acute indigestion on Thanksgiving Day. He was born in New York 65 years ago.

He was ordained in 1891, served in Asheville, N. C., for seven years and was eighteen years in charge of a Kingston, N. Y., parish. He had been at Trinity four years.

The Rev. Charles Mercer Hall was rector of Holy Cross Church on Pine Grove avenue for eighteen years, and was widely known not only in Kingston but throughout Ulster county. He was born in Brooklyn on December 23, 1864, the oldest son of William Noble Hall and Flora Margaret McAllister. He received his early education privately in England, where he resided for twelve years.

After ten years' experience in the mercantile and banking business in Philadelphia, he took instruction in the classics under a tutor, and in 1888 entered the General Theological Seminary, New York, where for three years he took a course as special student.

On January 6, 1891, he was ordained deacon by the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., Bishop of New Jersey, and on December 23, 1891, was advanced to the order of priesthood.

Father Hall's first work as a priest was as a missionary at Camden, N. J., where he had charge of St. Barnabas and St. Andrew's Chapel. In 1893 he became curate of the Church of the Beloved Disciple in New York, and in 1894 he came to Kingston as vicar of the Mission Church of the Holy Cross and curate of St. John's Church.

First Rector of Holy Cross.

In 1894 Father Hall became first rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. Prior to his ordination as deacon, he was offered the rectorship of St. Matthew's Church at Omaha, Neb., and later he declined an election to the Church of the Ascension at Atlantic City, N. J. He also declined curacies at the Church of the Evangelists at Philadelphia; the Church of the Redeemer in New York, and All Saints' Church in Orange Valley, N. J.

In 1894 Father Hall received the degree of M. A. "honoris causa" from St. Stephen's College at Annandale. Father Hall in addition to his church work found time for literary pursuits and was the author of "The Life of a Christian" and "Calvary Every Day", besides various sermons and magazine articles.

Father Hall was a member of the New York Catholic Club and also of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament and the Guild of All Souls. He was active in the organization of the Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and served as its first president for a number of years. He was also elected, while in Kingston, as honorary chaplain of the old Fourteenth Separate Company of the New York State National Guard.

In 1898, Father Hall was united in marriage to Bertha, only daughter of the late Judge Alton Brooks Parker.

During the many years that Father Hall was rector of the Church of the Holy Cross he was actively identified with the religious life of the city and was also deeply interested in its civic affairs.

A high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul on Monday morning, December 2, at 9 o'clock in Trinity Episcopal Church at Bridgeport, Conn. The remains will be brought to Kingston by automobile cortege and interred in Wiltwyck Cemetery on Monday afternoon at the convenience of the family. It is requested that there be no floral offerings.

Thanksgiving for Clinton Guards Spoiled by Hoax

Danemora, N. Y., Nov. 29 (AP).—Clinton prison guards, denied Thanksgiving dinner at home, because of the apparent hoax perpetrated by convicts, who had spread rumors of a general riot scheduled for Thanksgiving, today continued a sharp watch at the prison. Thirty-eight State Troopers from Malone, called at noon yesterday by Warden Harry M. Kaiser, who believes in preparedness, had returned to their barracks without seeing action.

Although machine guns still were ready atop prison walls today, citizens of Danemora were agreed that inmates of New York state's "Si-beria" had got even, at least in part, with the guards who on July 22, last, crushed an uprising of the prisoners.

While guards and Troopers kept armed patrol yesterday in stifling snow squalls, driven by a stiff wind, convicts placidly ate chicken in the mess hall and afterwards attended an entertainment in the auditorium. Their sullenness was attributed by officials to the holiday. But it was only this show of discontent that authorities had to deal with. There was no sign of a mutiny.

The general feeling of tension spread from the prison to the village, and residents waited anxiously for the shrike of the tocsin that would signal another outbreak. Principal Keeper Asel Granger, attending a wedding in Plattsburg, was called from the wedding breakfast by Warden Kaiser. Telephone and electric power linemen remained at the prison most of the day.

Rumors of the planned mutiny were first heard two or three days ago. Yesterday morning they had become so general that the warden decided to take no chances.

Apparently the prisoners had only wanted to spoil the day for authorities.

Ate Strychnine Pills, Believing They Were Candy

George William Swarthout, 28 years old, died Wednesday evening of strychnine poisoning after he had swallowed some "pink" pills which he evidently thought were candy. The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Swarthout of 219 Ten Broeck avenue.

George's older brother, Warren, is said to have been playing with an alarm clock during the morning. The younger brother, seeing the article and wanting it, climbed on a chair to take it from the shelf on which it had been placed. As George climbed to take the clock he saw a bottle filled with colored pills, which attracted his attention. The boy probably thought that the bottle contained candy and he ate about half of the contents, becoming sick at once.

Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek was called to treat the child and to all appearances the boy was on the way to recovery, but early in the evening he was seized with convulsions and was taken to the Kingston Hospital, where he died a short time later.

Coroner W. N. Conner took charge of the case and after he had made an investigation as of the opinion that the lad had died of acute strychnine poisoning.

Surviving George are his parents, his brother, Warren, and a sister, Erma. Funeral services will be held at the home Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Interment will be in the Wiltwyck cemetery.

Nanking Moves For Peace With Soviet Russia

Washington Government Ready to Move If Opportunity Offers—Davis Confers With British Foreign Minister.

Nanking, China, Nov. 29 (AP).—The Nanking Central Chinese Government moved today to solve its quarrel with Soviet Russia over ownership and management of the Chinese Eastern Railway built by the Chinese in Manchuria. It was reported that actual military hostilities in Manchuria had ceased.

But there was a belligerent tone to a note forwarded to the Moscow government from the Chinese ambassador at Berlin. It was said that rejection of the Chinese terms "will indicate Russia entertains warlike ambitions toward China. The national government will be prepared to meet the Soviet move accordingly."

C. T. Wang, Nanking foreign minister, emphatically official announcements at Moscow that the Manchurian Provincial Government at Mukden had moved for conciliation of the railroad dispute, meeting the Russian demands.

Soviet military operations in Manchuria seemed to have ceased at least partially, although an air bombing raid was made on the new Chinese military headquarters at Buchan yesterday.

A Nationalist Foreign Office statement said a telegram had been received from Chang Tso-Ping, Chinese Minister to Germany, stating he had delivered to the Soviet government representative proposals, first, that a Sino-Russian joint commission to investigate border conditions be formed, and second, withdrawal of troops by both sides to at least 30 miles from the border.

Says There Will Be "More War".

Mukden, Nov. 29 (AP).—The Russian wireless station at Habarovsk last night broadcast a statement saying conversations between Moscow and Mukden looking toward the settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway controversy still were proceeding, but that there will be "more war."

The radio announcer, commenting upon the Manchurian situation, said: "The Chinese Manchurian army has suffered heavy losses but Russia has not lost faith in Chang Hsueh-liang's word, as his forces are still fighting. Therefore Russia must prepare for more war."

Ambassador Dawes Confers.

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP).—The Washington government today awaited with interest the outcome of the note sent to Moscow by China making proposals for the settlement of its dispute with Soviet Russia.

Meanwhile, further steps looking toward concerted action with other powers to avert a war in Manchuria were held in abeyance pending some word of the Russian reaction to the Chinese communication, which, it was widely asserted, that Russian rejection of the peace plan embodied in it would "indicate" that the Soviet Union "entertained warlike ambitions toward China."

The state department has asked the governments of Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy and Germany for suggestions of how best the powers can act to bring the troubled Sino-Russian question to an amicable settlement. Word from London last night was that Ambassador Dawes had a long conference with Foreign Secretary Henderson. It was reported that at its conclusion a lengthy cablegram was dispatched to Washington.

$1,000,000 Loan to Wheat Growers

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP).—A commodity loan of $1,000,000 was granted the South Dakota Wheat Growers' Association of Aberdeen, S. D., today by the Federal Farm Board.

The $1,000,000 will be used to supplement loans obtained by the South Dakota Association from the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank at Omaha, Neb. It will enable the association to make advances to its grower members in line with the wheat loan policy announced by the Farm Board last month.

The resolution, Hawley said, would be introduced Monday and he would call a meeting Tuesday of the Ways and Means Committee. Hearings, he added, probably would be short in view of the approval of the reduction by the administration and leaders of both parties in both Houses.

In the event the House would agree to consider the resolution Wednesday, under unanimous consent, without waiting for the committee report, it probably would be approved that day, he said. Otherwise it would be brought up Thursday for action.

Coldest Weather Of Season, Tonight

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP).—After several indecisive skirmishes with autumn, winter today had begun its first general offensive, with mid temperatures and soft breezes retreating so rapidly that a general frost was predicted by the Weather Bureau tonight.

"The coldest weather of the season," the forecast said, "will prevail quite generally tonight with freezing temperatures as far south as Southern Georgia and possibly Northern Florida."

Some comfort, however, was seen in the prediction that there would be a return to somewhat higher temperatures Saturday afternoon as far east as the Appalachian region, with the weather growing warmer Sunday in all sections east of the Mississippi river.

AMERICAN MISSIONARY RELEASED BY BANDITS

The Rev. Ulrich Kreutzen of the Franciscan mission at Wuchang, who was captured by bandits several weeks ago, again has written to his mission saying his captors were demanding 6,000 dollars Mexican for his release.

Mayor Asks All To Purchase Seals

November 27, 1929, Kingston, N. Y.

To the People of Kingston:

The annual sale of Christmas Seals by the National Tuberculosis Association has begun, and we should all purchase as many as we can.

The money received from the sale of seals is spent not only for the general work of the association, but helps maintain "Camp Happyland" for little girls and boys, who are given a chance each summer to lay up a store of health. This camp, together with the work of the visiting nurse of the State Charities Aid Association, has done much to check the ravages of tuberculosis at its source.

Very truly yours,
E. J. DENPSEY,
Mayor.

BUS PASSENGERS OVERCOME BY CARBON MONOXIDE

Cleveland, Nov. 29 (AP).—Overcome by carbon monoxide gas, eight passengers of a Detroit to Pittsburgh Colonial Stage Line bus were rushed to a hospital here today. Doctors said they would recover.

Needing repairs to the windshield, the driver kept the motor idling while the repairs were being made, so that the bus would be kept warm by heat from the exhaust.

Workmen at the repair station noticed the passengers slumped over in their seats and first thought they were asleep, but investigation showed most of them were unconscious. The repair men immediately carried the overcome passengers to fresh air outside the bus and summoned firemen and ambulances.

Annual Meeting Of Auto Club

The annual meeting of the Ulster County Automobile Club will be held on Monday evening, December 9, at the Masonic Club rooms on Broadway, near Henry street. Reports of the officers will be received of the year's activities of the club and officers will be elected for the ensuing year. One of the big features of the club service the past year has been the aid given to club members experiencing trouble on the road with their cars. All that the member had to do was to call the club headquarters by telephone and assistance was sent. In case the office was closed the motorist simply consulted his emergency call book and called the nearest service garage for assistance.

He is also the author of many books of devotional theology, and is rated as a very great scholar.

The Every Member Canvass of Holy Cross Parish will be conducted Sunday when twenty teams of workers will go out to receive pledges toward the 1930 budget of the parish.

New sacrifices have been given to the church as a thanks offering for deliverance from death of a parishioner. Work will be begun on them immediately. The building will consist of a large entrance vestibule, priests' sacristy, a commodious vestry for altar boys, and a working sacristy. Every convenience in the way of cases, lockers, closets and plumbing will be installed. The building will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

NEW YORK CITY'S FIRST REAL TOUCH OF WINTER.

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—New York city, which hitherto had enjoyed comparatively mild temperatures this season, got its first real touch of winter today as the mercury huddled below the freezing point.

The thermometer dropped from 29 degrees at midnight to 22 at 7 a. m., only seven degrees above the record low temperature for November 29, established in 1872. A bright sun had brought the mercury column up only four degrees by noon.

Weather Bureau officials said the cold would continue for several days and probably would drop to 18 degrees by tomorrow.

His father informed the sheriff's office that he was missing from his home and had not been to school. Another youth, Fred Paken, aged 16, is alleged to have had some connection with Davis in his actions, but he escaped the officers.

FIND OLD WALLS OF ROMAN TIMES

Rich Discovery Made by German Archeologists.

Berlin:—The foundation of a wall, containing almost wholly of sculptured stones of the imperial Roman period is the astonishing spoil of the spades of German archeologists working in the neighborhood of the town of Alzey in the Rhine country. Seeking for traces of a medieval church, they came upon the remains of a much older building, about sixteen yards square, which dates back to the days when the legions still occupied the parts of Germany that bordered upon Gaul.

The construction of the foundation was of a most unusual type of masonry. The stones consisted largely of sculptured fragments of ancient pagan shrines and temples, including among others, nine altars, twenty-five pieces of pillars, four stones with inscriptions, six broken statues and reliefs, and six blocks with images of gods on all four sides. The structure suggests that it was the work of builders who not only disbelieved in the old gods but were actually hostile to them and wished to show their contempt for them; therefore possibly of early Christian date.

An examination of the sculptures and inscriptions shows that here, as elsewhere in southern Germany, the pre-Christian populace of mixed Germans, Romans and Gauls identified local gods with deities of the Roman pantheon. Apollo was linked with Grannus, a Celtic divinity, and the Roman Vulcan with the Celtic Cerun-nos.

Jupiter is shown with a nine-spoked wheel, and the wheel is not a Roman emblem, but a German, being a figure of the sun.

Monument to Motherhood to Be Raised by Vets

Kansas City, Kan.—A monument to the motherhood of America is to be erected on the grounds of the V. F. W. National home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., founded four years ago by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, for the care and welfare of the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

State commanders throughout the country will recommend one man from their respective states to act on a committee charged with the responsibility of gathering the necessary funds and erecting the memorial.

The movement, sponsored by a resolution adopted by the thirtieth national encampment of the V. F. W. held at St. Paul last August, contemplates the erection of "a utilitarian monument bearing the inscription 'To the Motherhood of America.'"

The contribution of American motherhood, manifesting itself in every human activity, affording stimulus and inspiration to the better causes of civilization, was cited by those supporting the plan as a "vital force in our American heritage."

The project also gives recognition to the "multiple and continuous sacrifices, both in times of war and in times of peace, on the part of the motherhood of America for the most port unhonored and unsung."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—A blonde Norwegian girl, who immigrated recently and got a job as chambermaid, is in the social register, for a year at least. The latest item seems that Miss Adeline Ingvaldsen was married to William W. Willock, Jr., at Oyster Bay November 6. Willock, Sr., steel magnate, has forgiven the chap and presented them a house on his estate. The register omits Mr. and Mrs. James J. Tunnay, whose marriage it noted last year. It mentions Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Donald G. Perkins, in black velvet cap, red coat and gold breeches, will be married December 7 to Mrs. Margaret W. Bullock, who will wear a top hat, black coat and black breeches. The honeymoon will start with a fox hunt in which guests will join.

Hollywood, Cal.—The film world has verified its suspicion that Nicholas Pratt and Evelyn Lederer Kiefer are one. Which means that Nick Stuart and Sue Carol, lovers on the screen are married. They have been Mr. and Mrs. since July, and since then have said often that they are not engaged.

Tucson, Ariz.—Isabel Helen Maynard, stepdaughter of M. J. Hannon, speaker of the Arizona House of Representatives, is going to Egypt as the bride of Hassan Baby El Kordi, son of the director of education in Cairo. They met at the University of Arizona, where the groom studied agriculture.

Washington—A two weeks' summer vacation, suggested by James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, for some real busy executives, to wit, wives of business managers in the world, who in their occupations of wife, mother, nurse, housekeeper, cook, landlady, seamstress, shopper, financier and master of trade, combine the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon and the common sense of Lincoln.

London—The Prince of Wales seems to be quite a diplomat. In Britain amateur boxers must be clothed above the waist. Simon pure fighting in trunks simply isn't done. Primo Carnera, Italian professional heavyweight, didn't understand that when he appeared at a charity show under amateur rules. He refused to fight hampered until the Prince, one of the spectators, sent him some sort of a message, and thereby embarrassment was avoided, for socially prominent women were present.

London—Ambassador Dawes is delighted to celebrate Thanksgiving. He told the American Society of London at a holiday banquet that this day of good cheer was the only day on which the solemn Pilgrims fathers loosened up and celebrated.

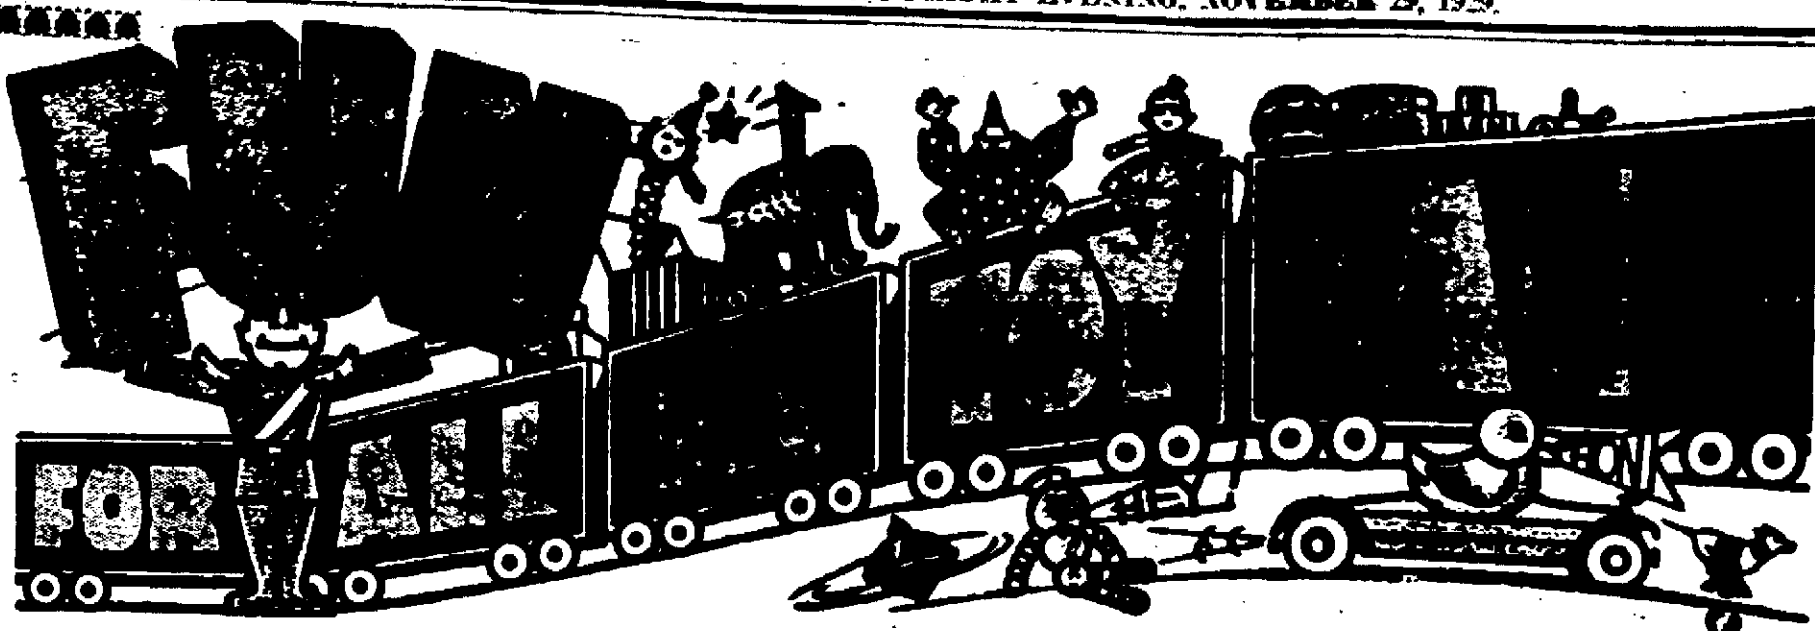

Albany, N. Y.—The State Commission of Correction urges that inmates be permitted to smoke in Elmira Reformatory, where delinquent youths between 16 and 21 are confined.

Lincoln's Wife
Abraham Lincoln married a woman named Todd, and was once asked how members of the Todd family spelled their name. "With two ds," he replied. "God was satisfied with one, but the Todds insisted on two." Lincoln patiently submitted to the most foolish, incapable and annoying wife in history, but the incident above indicates he was not above taking a "dig" at her. The more prominent a man is, the greater the necessity for submitting in case he has a foolish wife; he feels he must be noble in public estimation.—Hoy's Monthly.

Galileo's Discovery
It is recorded that Galileo was one evening in the cathedral of Pisa. The swinging of a high chandelier caught his attention, and he watched it closely as its distance of travel diminished. Suddenly he observed a significant fact—no matter how wide the arc described by the chandelier, the time consumed in one complete oscillation was always the same. From this observation came the construction of a clock, the forerunner of the modern pendulum timepiece.

Enough vital energy has been wasted in useless worry to run all the affairs of the world.

"Some persons," said a Kingston man, "are like as oil painting, they present a more attractive appearance when viewed from a distance."

You probably think you have made your last worthless investment, but you haven't.

Nuggets of Wisdom. All of us have to make good or make room.

You have to pay as you go if you are going far.

He who exhibits his temper gives a free show.

Only the hen can make money by laying around.

Push isn't the only thing. That's all a pla head is good for.

About the time you make both ends meet, somebody moves the ends.

Magistrate: "So your only defense is that you were drunk when you kissed the lady. How can you prove that?"

Defendant: "Well, just take a good look at her yourself, Judge."

For every ten men who can think on an idea only one exists who can carry out the idea.

A young man from the country came to Kingston, bought an ice cream cone, walked outside to eat it, then brought the cone back to the fountain. Handing it to the clerk, he said: "Much obliged for the vase."

A Kingston man visiting a remote village noticed they had neither library or movie. "Whatever do you go here when it rains?" he asked of one of the inhabitants.

"Oh," replied the man, "we just let it rain."

BE YOURSELF. Perhaps you are in someone else's shoes. The man you'd like to be—perhaps the garments that he wears—just suits you to a "T."

Perhaps his wealth, his handsome face, his air of sweet content. Have made you want to copy him. And all these things present. But friend, when God made you and me. He made us to be men—

If aces He had wanted, aces He'd made. And placed us in a pen—He made us to be gentlemen. To think, and act, and talk. To have opinions of our own. And not in circles walk. Read, reason, plan, reflect. Then find what's best for you—Don't handicap with precedent. That which to you, is true: Then you're a part of God's great plan. Not bound by others' self—You are a true, upstanding man. Because you are—YOURSELF!

What was good enough for father not good enough for me.

A hick town is a place where a special delivery letter is delivered when the postmaster sees some kid who wants to earn a dime.

Molasses may come more dies than vinegar but who the dickens wants more flies?

Mr. Spiffedickens: "Say, that guy Oscar was so lubricated last night that he sold the postoffice."

Mr. Noodlestretcher: "Well, why so down in the mouth about it?"

Mr. Spiffedickens: "Because I bought it."

Abe Martin says flattery won't hurt you unless you swallow it. It's the same way with advice the town man gives the farmer.

Hell, for some people, will be a place where they will be compelled to stay at home.

Denies He Was Robbed; Other Admits Robbery

Milwaukee, Wis.—One hears of denial of robbery, by the accused and the insistence of the deed by the accuser, but when the tables are turned—That is the question which grew out of the case in which Bruce Spence, confessed narcotic thief, figured here recently. While he was charged with six thefts, Spence asserted he had robbed the office of Dr. H. C. Ladewig, Milwaukee physician. Doctor Ladewig was firm in his denial of the robbery. Spence was equally insistent that he had committed a felony. The judge held the case open to determine whether the prisoner was a drug addict.

American Women Get Homes For 58,700 White Russians

By PRISCILLA RING (Associated Press Correspondent.)

Constantinople, Nov. 29 (AP).—Finding a country for 58,700 men, women and children without a country is the achievement of two American women, Miss Anna V. Mitchell of New York city, sister-in-law of the Reverend Anson Phelps Stokes.

MISS ANNA V. MITCHELL

and Miss Alma Ruggles of Washington, D. C., daughter of General George D. Ruggles, U. S. A. After eight years' hard, during which the two Americans have assisted in evacuating all but 1,300 of the 60,000 White Russian refugees whom they found in Constantinople in 1921, Miss Mitchell and Miss Ruggles are leaving Turkey, but will return if they procure funds for handling the 1,300 remaining cases. These remnants of Wrangels' thousands who poured into Constantinople after the rout of the White army have been under Turkey's orders of expulsion since 1927—orders which have been unexecuted because American philanthropy has made possible a steady evacuation of the refugees.

Apart from funds given by the American Red Cross, Russian relief societies, the League of Nations, the Laura Spellman Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation, the relief workers have spent $30,000 supplied by private funds. The services of Miss Mitchell and Miss Ruggles have been entirely voluntary and the funds procured have gone directly into relief work, with no overhead expenses.

These funds have supplied medical care, clothing, food and lodging for thousands of destitute Russians. They have also furnished transportation. Many have been sent to South America, which is still open to White Russians, most European countries having closed their doors. Those sent to South America report that they have found work under better conditions and at better wages than they could in Europe and urge their friends among the 1,300 still in Constantinople to join them.

But money for this final migration is lacking. A small American committee and the League of Nations are still actively interested, and it is hoped that the most urgent cases of relief can be helped.

MISS ALMA RUGGLES

In addition to their achievements here, these two Americans also hold important places in the records of world-war relief work, having been active in post-war reconstruction in Serbia and France. In recognition of these services, Miss Mitchell was given the medal of Reconnaissance Francaise and the French Croix de Guerre.

$2,000,000 Fire at Hull Water Front

Hull, Mass., Nov. 29 (AP).—Flames fanned by a forty-mile an hour wind swept the Nantasket excursion fleet and pier here late yesterday, destroying five steamers, adjoining water front structures, the state bath house and three dwellings with a loss of $2,000,000.

Firemen from six towns, Quincy and Boston, were summoned to the blaze, the worst in the history of the south shore. Two firemen and a policeman were injured.

Embers borne on the wind leaped over several hotels and small beach buildings to set fire to the state bath house. Blazes were started three-quarters of a mile away on the roofs of a dozen cottages and the Church of St. Mary of the Assumption. The church steeple was damaged.

Known to thousands of tourists, the five steamers, the Mary Chilton, Nantasket, Rose Standish, Betty Alden and Old Colony, which were moored at the pier caught fire and were destroyed successively. A low tide and the absence of tugs prevented towing them to safety. They were valued at $350,000 apiece.

Starting from an unknown cause in the ticket booth on the pier, the blaze was discovered by Captain John MacFarland, skipper of the Nantasket, shortly before 4 p. m. He turned in an alarm but the flames spread rapidly along the pier, setting the coal houses afire.

Burning the other way, the Old Colony was soon attacked by the flames. Captain Joseph T. Gallano promptly set the ship adrift, thinking to drift into the bay, but the wind blew the craft against the Mayflower. The Betty Alden, at the end of the pier, and the three steamers moored on the other side were successively set afire. The Mayflower was maneuvered away.

The fire was declared under control at 8 p. m. after four hours of fighting. Guards were placed during the night.

Magician Hewes' Widow Dies as Husband Lived

New York.—As "Hewes, the magician," lived in life—a mystery—his widow died. Mrs. Hewes, who lived alone in a four-room apartment here, was found strangled to death. There was nothing to explain the circumstances under which she died. The body was found by a maid. Mrs. Hewes, who had made a practice of telling fortunes for the entertainment of friends and callers, apparently was well-to-do. Bank books among her effects showed deposits of large sums.

Rear-Seat Drivers
Rear-seat drivers do not all ride in automobiles. They can be and are found in all lines of work and ranks of life. Self-appointed rear-seat drivers are found everywhere, and at all times. The great majority of them are just plain "nuisances."—New Albany Tribune.

Bedbug Hunters Paid Handsomely

Pittsburgh.—Big game hunters may stalk through the jungles of Africa or the wastes of the north "country," but Pittsburghers are willing to stay at home as small game hunters where they will not run the risk of fever or freezing to death.

Small game hunters—very small game hunters—have found, through science, a lucrative trade in their own homes. Science wants fleas and bedbugs and is willing to pay cash for them.

One would think that a person who had 13 dozen fleas would be willing to get rid of them for nothing but evidently he will part with them only at a price. The science department of the University of Pittsburgh recently paid $22.50 for 180 fleas, or 15¢ cents per flea.

Musician Keeps Fiddling Despite Wife's Fortune

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Otto Brusch, viola player in the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, is going to keep on playing his viola, although his wife has inherited an estate of $500,000. "I'm going right on with my fiddling," Brusch said emphatically. Brusch has been connected with the orchestra since 1912, and he sees no reason for quitting now. The Brusches, however, have bought a big car and intend to add a few other material comforts to their home life.

Missouri "Houn' Dogs" Increasing in Value

Springfield, Mo.—The houn' dog is not a thing of the past. The major portion of coon and fox hounds in the United States are furnished by this section of the country. Each year, prior to the opening of the hunting season, buyers from all over the country come into the Ozarks to purchase hundreds of dogs. And the value of the "old houn' dawg" has increased until a first-class one is now worth $150.

King of Italy To Visit Pope

Vatican City, Nov. 29 (P.)—If the walls of the throne room of the Vatican had ears, they would hear words spoken on Thursday, December 5, of historic interest, for the speakers will be Pope Pius XI, King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy.

There will be no listeners except the walls. The Pope and the King and the Queen will be alone. The doors of the throne room will be closed.

It will be the first visit any King of Italy has made to any Pope. It will be of great significance. But only the walls will hear what the three noted personages will say.

To American tourists who "do" the Vatican, the throne room is unknown. It is not on the list of the hundreds of rooms and salons which they are permitted to visit. It is not in the guide-books.

On the right, as one enters it, is the Papal throne, a raised arm-chair, richly ornamented, standing beneath a square canopy of red velvet embroidered in gold.

Around the room are a few gilded chairs, and several tables against the wall, with religious ornaments upon them.

The room is very simply furnished. It might almost be called bare, except that what furnishings there are are very rich.

The ceiling and upper walls are decorated with elaborate murals. The floor is covered by a Spanish carpet especially manufactured. It was presented to Pope Leo XII.

The approach to the throne room is through a series of beautiful rooms. The King and the Queen will first enter the magnificent Sala Clementina, a huge room with beautiful murals. Here a squadron of Swiss guards is always on sentry duty at the entrance to the Papal apartments.

From the Sala Clementina the King and the Queen will walk through the Sala degli Armi, or hall of the tapestries. In this room hang three great Gobelin tapestries presented to the Pope by Louis XV of France.

Between the Sala degli Armi and the throne room is a royal room in which the noble guard, composed of members of the Papal nobility, has its post. This leads to the Pope's private chapel.

Behind the throne room is the Pope's private library. Here the Pope receives privately. This is the Pope's working-room.

Above these rooms are the Pope's living quarters. Below them are the rooms of the Cardinal Secretary of State.

When the King and the Queen enter the throne room they will find two chairs placed for them beside the throne. The King will take the one to the right, the Queen the one to the left.

When their conversation begins, the doors of the room will be closed.

"Creeping Barrage" Idea

Gen. Lord Henry Horne of Sirkoke, England, is the famous artillery commander whose name is associated with the first use of the "creeping barrage." General Horne, however, is said to have given the credit of its invention to Brig. Gen. E. W. Alexander, V. C. at the action at Fiers during the World war, on September 15, 1918.

Man to Be Avoided

He who backbites an absent friend, who does not defend him when others find fault; who loves to raise men's laughter, and to get the name of a witty fellow; who can pretend what he never saw; who cannot keep secrets entrusted to him; this man is a dangerous individual. Beware of him.—Horace.

Chewing Gum Delays Reds' View of "Chicago"

Memorandum.—The American stage version "Chicago" is scheduled for early production this season by the Moscow Art theater, where it is now being rehearsed.

Russian actors meet various obstacles in following the stage directions of this play. They were greatly puzzled by instructions to see the characters to fight a match on the trousers. Experiments showed that it could not be done with Russian matches and arrangements are being made for importing a few boxes of the American variety.

The Art theater directors were also amazed by the amount of chewing gum which figures in the stage directions, and that item, too, will be imported.

Letter Asking Jars Goes 46 Miles in 17 Years

Petersburg, Mich.—Seventeen years ago Miss Lou Lowe of Detroit needed some fruit jars, so she dropped a post card to her mother to that effect. The card reached its destination in excellent condition several days ago with no marks to indicate what delayed its 46-mile journey. Meanwhile Mrs. Lowe died and her daughter, now Mrs. William Herbeck, no longer needs the jars.

Derived From the Greek
Most of the characters of the Russian alphabet are derived from the Byzantine Greek of the Ninth century. Some others were added by Cyril to cover Slavonic sounds, increasing the number to 33 letters.

STUDY ENVIRONMENT OF U. S. CHILDREN

Nation-Wide Inquiry Is Sponsored by President.

Washington.—A nation-wide inquiry into the physical and social environment of the American child is moving forward. Permanent headquarters for a secretariat have been opened in the Interior department and 24 prominent educators, physicians, and sociologists have agreed to direct various phases of the investigation, which was sponsored by President Hoover.

Organization of the working force to place the American child under a microscope, determine his life, and recommend means of curing them have been completed. The group of public men chosen to make the survey immediately will begin collecting data. Fully 18 months, they predict, will be so spent.

General Meeting to Be Held.

With the study completed, a general conference of the committeemen will be called in Washington to consider conditions as they have found them and decide what may be done to improve them.

The investigation, announced by President Hoover at a White House conference some months ago, was made possible by a gift of $500,000 by some of the President's friends. He declined to name them.

A complete picture of the American child and his environment will be painted by the investigators, who will turn the spotlight of science into the home and school in their search for facts. Public health organization, medical service for children, the family and parent education, vocational guidance, parental and maternal care—these are some of the subjects assigned to the study committee.

The Handicapped Child.

The handicapped child, including both the physically and mentally abnormal, will be the subject of a particularly diligent study. Four committees will work in this field. One will survey state and local organizations for the handicapped, another the physically and mentally handicapped child, yet another the child who is socially hampered by dependency, and finally, another will seek data on delinquent children.

A committee of 25 persons, including Secretaries of Interior Wilbur and of Labor Davis, was designated by Mr. Hoover to supervise the investigation.

Negress Gives Up White

Baby in Hospital Mixup

Havana, Cuba.—A kinky-haired baby that nearly wrecked one Cuban home and a fair-haired infant that was the pride and joy of a young negress who thought she was its mother finally were returned to their proper parents when a strange case was solved in City court.

Bernadina Vega, the negress, gave up the white child she had learned to love and look upon as her own, and accepted in its place a dark-skinned pickaninny that nearly caused a divorce in the family of Caridad Perez. The two babies were born about the same time last December in a maternity hospital and were mixed during their first bath. As the days passed Senora Perez's charge began to turn dark of skin. The husband, after many stormy scenes, instituted suit for divorce.

Ten days ago Senora Perez called on the police to aid her in proving the child in her possession was that of a negress. Chief of Detectives Calvo started a search and found the white infant in the possession of Bernadina.

California Coeds Get

2:00 A. M. Curfew

Los Angeles.—Two o'clock in the morning has been set as the deadline for coeds at the University of California at Los Angeles to return from dates. This decision was reached at a women's council meeting headed by Mrs. Helen Mathewson Laughlin, dean of women. The time limit for week night dates was set at twelve o'clock. Freshmen have been limited to two week-end dates only; sophomores have been limited to two week-end dates and one during mid-week, while upper classmen may use their discretion so long as they are in their rooms before the deadlines. Special regulations governing houses where girls are staying were also discussed.

People So Law-Abiding

Justice Is Idle 25 Years

Butler, Pa.—W. B. Higgins, justice of the peace in Oakland township for 25 years, probably has set a record. In all the time he has held the office he has not heard a case, civil or criminal, so law-abiding are the residents. If differences arise between neighbors, Justice Higgins either reconciles them or advises that they take the case to another court.

Seized Slot Machines

Turned Into Birdhouses

Merrill, Wis.—With a hammer and a jackknife John Aho whittled away his time in the county jail here making birdhouses out of confiscated slot machines. After breaking them to pieces the sheriff turns the slot machines over to the ambitious prisoner, who already had made several birdhouses which have been lodged in trees in the jail yard.

Rebekahs Install Officers for Year

On Monday evening, November 25, in the lodge room of Colonial Rebekah Lodge, No. 48, a very brilliant scene was witnessed when the newly elected officers were installed for the ensuing year by District Deputy President Edna J. Cole and staff. It also was the home coming of the district deputy.

The room was trimmed in a very pleasing manner with colors pertaining to autumn and much praise was given the committee in charge. After closing of the lodge refreshments were served by the members under the supervision of Sister Mary Madara. Over 200 brothers and sisters were served. Colonial Lodge was very happy to have the district deputy president for the year from their lodge, and in appreciation presented Sister Cole with a Rebekah ring. Sister Cole thanked the lodge not only for the ring but for the way in which she had been received.

During the home coming program Sister Mary Osterhout, Past Noble Grand of Colonial Lodge, sang in a most pleasing manner "Home, Sweet Home." Sister Cole received many gifts from the lodges to which she was Deputy, each lodge feeling she had done her work well. Among the gifts was a beautiful bouquet from Sister Cole's husband and sons. After installation the newly appointed Noble Grand, Mabel Bode, was presented with a Rebekah ring, from her husband and daughter. The newly appointed Vice Grand received a lovely basket of flowers from her husband and daughter. Past Noble Grand, Sister Lemister, then presented the retiring Noble Grand, Sister Margaret Anderson, with a Past Noble Grand jewel, also expressing to her the good wishes from No. 48. Sister Ryer, who has been a faislful worker and pianist, was remembered by her fellow workers. Sister Ryer is also staff pianist.

Among the visitors present were: Sister Anna Van Aken, past assembly president; Sister Ethel Jones, past assembly marshal; Sister Florence Blakely, past assembly musician; Sister Henning, present district deputy president of Orange district; Sister Carlson, present district deputy of Green district; Brother Sidney Johnson, past district deputy of Ulster district, I. O. O. F.; Brother Nicholas Bode, present noble grand of Aretas Lodge.

A coincidence which may not happen again for some time is that Brother Bode is noble grand of Aretas Lodge and his wife, Sister Mabel Bode, is the new noble grand of Colonial. Twelve past district deputies answered to roll call and 13 past noble grands of Colonial lodge. Sister Cole then presented her staff with a token of appreciation, for the loyal way they had supported her. In the small hours of the morning the members departed for their homes with praise for Colonial Lodge in the way they had been entertained. Lodges were represented from Phenicia, Bearsville, West Saugerties, Saugerties, Highland, Athens, Newburgh, Ulster Park, Kingston and Gloucester, Maine.

The newly installed officers for Colonial Lodge were: N. G. Mabel Bode; V. G. Myrtle Flowers; R. S. Viola Conklin; F. S. Eugene Flicker; treasurer, Josephine Barringer; W. Mary Schraeder; conductress, Helen Otto; chaplain, Elsie Shipman; I. G. Jennie Hutton; O. G. Beatrice Elias; R. S. N. G. Louise Lemister; L. S. N. G. Edna Cole; A. S. V. G. Adah Flowers; L. S. V. G. Amelia Bode; R. S. S. Theresa Schussler; L. S. S. Emma Schussler; pianist, Theora Ryer; P. S. N. G. Margaret Anderson; P. C. Martha Rand.

LIGHTS & GRANT DIXON OF NEW YORK

Simple—What?
Note on the simple life in New York—an advertisement clipped from a publication:

"To an exclusive few this announcement is directed. A lofty triplex of fifteen rooms designed for the discriminating person who desires a perfect and complete town house high in the clouds. This unusual suite occupies the entire 34th, 35th, and 36th topmost floors of the hotel. New York's newest and smartest apartment hotel. No other apartment suite in New York has its spacious grandeur, equalled only in the larger private homes. Rental, $45,000."

Make your own comment.

Excited
The trials of a dramatic critic are not limited always to seeing bad plays. At a recent opening of the show's press agent halted a critic in order to present the producer—a newcomer in the game. The producer in turn presented the critic to Mrs. Producer—frightened-looking young woman with big, appealing eyes. "Oh," she sighed, "I've always heard how terrible critics are. If you only think as much of the play as I do..." And here emotion stifled the words in her throat. The producer interceded sympathetically. "Just feel her pulse," he offered. The critic dashed in to his seat. The play was quite bad.

Back-Pats
A pleasant little practice, which is the grown-up cousin of putting gold stars on schoolboys' report cards, has been established in the building industry. Carpenters, bricklayers, steamfitters and whatnot are decorated every so often by the New York building congress. For superior craftsmanship they receive certificates and gold buttons, and they are not ashamed to take them. The awards are made when a building job is nearing completion. Impressive exercises are held—usually just before lunch—in which representatives of the owners, the architects, the building congress and organized labor, cheer the boys on to making bigger and better buildings.

All in the Game
When Al Capone, the Chicago gangster with a large scar on his face, was cutting a wide social swath in Miami last winter, he met a young debutante at one of the parties. This young lady not knowing who he was, was very much impressed by the hard-boiled racketeer. On the bench the following day she was telling Mr. Charles Dillingham, the producer, about the attractive man she met the night before. "What was his name?" said Mr. Dillingham.

"Capone," replied the young lady. "Oh, yes, I know him," replied Mr. Dillingham. "Did he have a large scar on his face?" "Yes," answered the debutante, hopefully.

"Of course," said Mr. Dillingham sarcastically, "you know how he got that? He is a great polo player and he was playing in a game in England when the prince of Wales hit him with a mallet and left that scar."

A $50,000 Golf Game
A well-known horseman whose colors are seen frequently in front of the New York tracks, in going to play a game of golf with another sportsman recently, tried to get a bookmaker on the telephone to make a bet on a horse which was quoted at thirty to one. He had difficulty in reaching the bookmaker, and his golfing companion, becoming impatient, said:

"Come on, let's play golf. I'll take your bet, that nag can't win anyway." The horseman agreed to this and bet one thousand dollars across the board. The horse won at thirty to one, and proportionately long prices for place and show, and it cost his friend in the neighborhood of $50,000, to settle it, which he did promptly. However, it proved to be an expensive golf game.

(Ad by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Rattler in Subway
New York.—Patrolman Charles A. Kennedy recently found a live rattlesnake in the Canal street station of the Lexington avenue subway. It had eight rattles, he said, and was about five and one-half feet long.

Woman Hunter, Left Behind, Shoots Deer
Missoula, Mont.—Mrs. Goldie Burch was a mere woman. No, she couldn't hunt with the men folks. She could help out best by watching the car—the men would go forth and "bring home the bacon"; her job would be to cook it. And so Mrs. Burch stayed behind. The mighty male hunters had hardly been lost from sight of the car when they were startled by a rifle shot followed by hysterical screams. Fearing the worst, they rushed back to the auto and there, to their utter amazement, saw the "mere woman" standing over a 250-pound buck deer, shot from the car.

Thanksgiving at Baptist Church

The Albany Avenue Baptist Church was filled to capacity on Thanksgiving morning when members of the congregations of the up-town Protestant churches met there in a union service of Thanksgiving, in response to the proclamation and appeal of President Herbert Hoover, as Dr. Seeley mentioned.

The music as well as the sermon was inspiring and on every hand was heard the gladness that the Thanksgiving services uptown and downtown were being held in Churches.

The Rev. Arthur S. Cole, pastor of the Baptist Church opened the service with prayer which was followed by the singing of an anthem, "Open Wide Ye Gates," by a male quartet.

The Rev. Lucas Boeve, pastor of the First Reformed Church, gave the Scripture reading, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Neal, pastor of the St. James Methodist Church.

Harold Brigham sang splendidly, with piano and organ accompaniment. "The Lord Is My Shepherd," after which the offertory was taken for the benefit of the Industrial Home, Miss Anderson, the organist, playing an impressive organ number.

The singing of the Doxology and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Cole, led up to the sermon preached by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Dr. Seeley prefaced his sermon by referring the statement of those who claimed that there is a decline of faith, as he recalled a similar service 25 years ago, when it was his duty and privilege to preach the Thanksgiving sermon, and the congregation was not half the size of that which he was then addressing. Yet there had been a great inspiration to him in the service as he recalled sentences and prayers offered by the Rev. Dr. Van Slyke, loved pastor of the First Reformed Church.

Dr. Seeley took for the text of his sermon the eighteenth verse of the fourth chapter of St. Paul's second Epistle to the Corinthians: "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at things which are unseen; for the things that are seen are temporal; but the things that are unseen are eternal." Dr. Seeley recognized the amazing material glory and richness and power in the world today. He took cognizance of man's creative, organizing, accomplishing activities. But his one question was "What do we see in all this immeasurable generosity of a Heavenly Father?" He said in effect that "if there is to be a worthy future for our land or for us as individuals, there can be but one answer to such questioning—to see in and through all these material blessings and riches men and Him who cares for men, God, Himself. So shall there come a larger, freer appreciation and love of Him who loved us and gave Himself for us. Only so can there be hope for a world that shall bless mankind." With the pronouncing of the benediction, the service closed.

ON REARING CHILDREN FROM CRIB TO COLLEGE

If a father has never stopped to play with his children when they were little, there will be small likelihood that they will count him as a companion when they grow older. If a father has never been interested in his young children's questions, they will not turn to their father with those adolescent questions with which father especially can help. There are few men who would not be proud to have their growing boys and girls love them and trust them as their closest friends. But this does not come about by accident. It only comes as a man gives to his children that one thing which matters most—the comradeship of a love which is unselfish.

A baby should at all times be free to move his arms and legs. There are two ways by means of which greater freedom may be accomplished without danger from cold. One is a large sleeping bag. It should not slope at the shoulders, but extend straight out and to several inches wider than the span of the child's outstretched arms. The second way is to put the baby into one of the little knit sweaters and leggings outfits which can be so easily and cheaply obtained nowadays.

The proportion of children entering schools for the blind who lost their sight because of sore eyes in infancy has been greatly reduced during the last twenty years. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness ascribes this to the measures which have been taken, either by law or by health department regulation, requiring or urging the use of a prophylactic in the eyes of newborn babies.

Divorce your emotions from the child's meal time! Don't give way to your grief and fears in the presence of unsteady nerves and speech. Be casual before a young but discerning audience, and remember that a few plates of unexciting food, however desirable, are less important than the gradual establishment of good food habits for life and a tolerance for foods to which one is perhaps indifferent or antagonistic.

Pre-adolescent girls need companionship with both sexes, and parents should encourage pastimes which include boys. Interest in the opposite sex is not keen at this time, but girls at any age learn from boys a fine spirit of play, a sportsman attitude toward physical pain, a lack of pettiness and an ease in getting on with boys which is invaluable. If they have been in the habit of playing with boys they will be far less likely to lose their poise when the interest becomes an emotional one. Wise parents always have open house for the boys and girls of their daughter's acquaintance.

The new schools are abolishing the tyranny of marks in examination. As a rule progressive educators use no marks in the classroom. They seek to abolish the evils of the competitive marking system which is so apt to produce in brilliant children self-consciousness, conceit and selfishness, and in the slow-minded child a sense of failure, of inferiority and of injustice.

Letter Oddly Addressed

Every post office employee has experienced troubles with performing the work of delivering letters owing to the obscure or insufficient directions inscribed upon missives passing through their hands. The postmaster of Southampton, England, was confronted with this one recently: "To the Chemical Cleaners who are Dyeing an Overcoat for Arthur Lewis. Near the bridge same street as the Market is in, near top of St. James Road, Southport." The letter was delivered.

Rabbit Was Traveler

The driver of a motor car in Switzerland tells the story of the astonishing speed and long-sustained effort which a rabbit is capable of. He happened to start one, which on its flight kept to the road. In order to keep up with the rabbit, the man had to speed up to 34 miles an hour, and the sturdy little creature held out for over a league before it finally jumped into a ditch by the roadside.

Loading to Unhappiness

People who are very vain are usually susceptible; and they who feel one thing acutely, will so feel another.—Switzerland.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

THE MOSTLY BROKEN WAISTLINE IS THE MORE KINDLY

New York—Waistlines are still inclined to wander. So many women disapprove of the normal line that its placement must be really determined by the individual. Those who find it difficult to wear may be sustained and helped by the thought that fashion always advises the line to be broken by softness, a slight blouse often taking the curve of the tuck-in treatment which is certainly one of the season's highlights.

While the vast majority of evening dresses subscribe to smooth lines or are cut princess, there are some with a broken treatment occasioned by the use of shirring or some thing of the kind. Bulfers are instrumental in fostering the normal line upon women by a process of partial concealment of the line. The smart practice of having the top of the frock a contrasting color to the skirt persists, this often being done in battlemented or pointed effects, one fabric inset in the other.

Skirts attain their desired irregularity by means of semi-detached panels, by godets and of course by flounces and frills. These are usually set on in a line which dips to a point either at back or side. It is the exceptional evening dress which is not long.

The long skirt has of course brought the petticoat back; both costume slips and petticoats have been elongated and elaborated to meet the demands put upon them.

"You can't stop rising now" says Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION to your cake

It's the double-action of Calumet Baking Powder that protects your cake in the oven—just where so many cakes fail.

The first action—in the mixing bowl—has already started the leavening. Then you put your cake into the oven and Calumet's second action starts. The cake rises steadily upward and stays up. Its success is assured.

That's why Calumet cakes are so wonderfully light and tender. Biscuits, short cakes, quick breads, too. Calumet's Double-Action has made such a difference in baking that it has become the most popular baking powder in the world—far outselling every other brand.

Make a Calumet cake today and you will see how beautifully this double-acting baking powder protects your cake from failure. Use only one level teaspoon of Calumet to a cup of flour. This is the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results—a real economy, too.

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Buy a can of Calumet from your grocer today.

Test: CALUMET'S DOUBLE-ACTION this way

See for yourself how baking powder acts—and how Calumet acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

Liner Damaged In Collision

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—After a 24-hour delay, due to a damaged bow, the liner Mauretania was en route for Europe today.

The ship sailed at midnight carrying her full quota of passengers with the exception of one woman, who took advantage of the return to port to remain with a relative who had become ill. Many of the American passengers enjoyed a Thanksgiving Day dinner ashore.

The damage sustained by the liner one hour after she sailed at midnight Wednesday was found on her return to her pier yesterday to have been slight. Several plates on her port bow had to be replaced and the new section filled with cement. While the cement was hardening a complete survey of the liner was made and she was pronounced seaworthy.

Captain E. G. S. McNeill, commander of the Mauretania, said the collision was the first he had experienced in the thirty-five years he has been coming into the port of New York.

Cleaning Plaster Statues

When plaster statues have become dingy and dusty give a thorough brushing and dusting. Take a good quality of white or cream colored paint and make it thin with turpentine. Apply this to the statue with great care so that no paint settles in the crevices to impair the modeling. The statue can then be kept clean by wiping carefully with a wet cloth. Many statues in the Corcoran Art gallery, Washington, are treated in this way.

Wind Sways Skyscrapers

Strong gusts of wind against tall steel buildings cause the structures to sway and vibrate, tests have shown. According to reports, two of the tallest buildings in New York city bend as much as six inches at the top of their towers, three inches in either direction from the neutral fixed position, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Designers of a tall building now to be built in Chicago allowed for a sway of two inches in either direction.

Language Peculiarities

English has twenty-six alphabetic letters, twenty-one for consonants and five for vowels. English has some forty-four sounds, twenty-four consonantal and twenty vocalic. To represent these forty-four sounds in spelling, English has well over 400 separate orthographic combinations, making an average of ten possible spellings per sound. What can you do with a language like that? And yet there is a charm about it—Janet Rankin Allen, in the Bookman.

To Keep Human "Motor" in Its Best Condition

There's a new way of putting some well-known rules of advice, which no believe will appeal to every motorist who thinks as much of himself as he does of his car. They are taken from "The City Health," and ought to be memorized by all people, young and old, who wish to keep fit:

Put your machine up alongside a filling station regularly three times a day and put into it high-test fuel such as leafy green vegetables, fresh fruit, milk, dark bread and real butter. Do not use substitutes—you wouldn't do it with a limousine. This high-test fuel is remarkable in that it begins up your automobile as well as puts pep in your motor.

Run your human automobile into the garage each night for eight hours at rest. Remember to turn on the fan by opening windows and getting plenty of fresh air. This will prevent flat tires.

Run your automobile body onto the wash rack daily.

Keep the cleaning apparatus clean. Wash it night and morning.

Give your human car plenty of water to prevent a dry radiator.

Visit expert mechanics regularly (the doctor once a year and the dentist at least twice a year). They can help you overhaul your machine and discover a little knock in the motor before you even hear it.—Hampshire (Mass.) Gazette.

Dolphin Supreme Among Persecutors of Whale

Those "thresher sharks" of fabulous dimensions are reported from the south coast as fast becoming a formidable rival of the sea serpent and the goosberry, writes Looker-on in the London Daily Chronicle. They are fairly common during summer around Cornwall, where they do vast damage to pilchard and mackerel nets, in which they completely whiff them selves, like a caterpillar in his chrysalis. The thresher shark is also called the sea fox, from the remarkable tail which he uses to frighten shoals of fish, and so make them more easily caught. There are sailors' tales that this whiplike tail is sometimes used for flogging whales to death. But the real persecutor of the whale is the glaucous dolphin or sword grampus (Xiphodon gladius), a very voracious fellow, who kills and eats whales, seals, and even his brother porpoises.

Contrasting Inaugurations

Franklin Pierce, who took office in 1853, is said to have been the first President to deliver his inaugural address without notes. His voice was remarkably clear and he raised great enthusiasm by his handsome appearance, dignified bearing and unusual powers of oratory.

Jackson, whose induction into high office in 1829 was attended by some of the wildest scenes in inauguration day history, delivered an inaugural that stands as one of the briefest on record. It took him only a few minutes to read it.

Prevent Infection

It is a good plan to have a small magnifying glass such as an inexpensive lens, handy on the bath room shelf to make sure the children's scratches, cuts and other minor wounds are perfectly clear of extraneous material. This lens will discover tiny bits of dirt, hair or fuzz that the naked eye can never see. Removal of the wound becomes simply a matter of healing. Many bad cases of infection might have been prevented by just such a simple device.

Wasp's Usefulness

Wasps play an important part in ridding insect population by killing off large numbers of injurious insects.

Floods in South England

London, Nov. 29 (AP)—Storms which yesterday struck the English Channel developed into a 24-hour rainfall for all of South England.

Today many roads and fields in South Wales, the Midlands and western and southern counties were flooded and impassable. Some old timers said it has been the wettest November ever known in this wet country.

Fog and gales forced the Steamer Goletta ashore near Wexford, but its position was not dangerous and it was expected to float with high tide.

Several barges were in difficulties yesterday near Deal on the southeast coast and ten men were rescued from a trawler in the heavy weather at Newton Hall, Kincardineshire, Scotland. No loss of life thus far has been recorded.

Dispatches from Lisbon told of continuation of similar weather along the Portuguese coast, with floods and considerable damage in some villages.

He Man

Two lads were visiting their aunt. The older was very neat and made no objection to the daily bath demands of them by the fastidious aunt. The younger lad had an aversion to water and his fond aunt asked: "Why do you always howl about bathing? Your big brother never acts like that."

"Well, he is stuck on the girls and wants to look pretty. I'm a man's man," replied the aggrieved lad.

Not Crushed by Criticism

Criticism should not be taken too seriously. Edison, tinkering with his electric light bulb, was told by scientists that it couldn't be done. But he did it, because he was indifferent to other men's experience and criticism.—Grit.

Thief Know Sure Way to Win Guessing Contest

LYNN, Mass.—A penny-wise thief spoiled Joseph Kaufman's advertising stunt.

In his show window Kaufman had a bowl filled with pennies. Customers were asked to guess the number of pennies in the bowl. During the night an unknown robber smashed the window and made off with the bowl and pennies.

"Lamps of Learning"

In Greece and Rome the dim, smoky lamp made its appearance at a fairly early date. It was a shallow dish, round or oval in shape, with a handle at one end and a spout for the wick at the other. It was made of baked earth or metal, and the wick was made of tow or cloth. These lamps, used chiefly by students and teachers, are the traditional lamps of learning to which reference is frequently made.

Check them quickly with the universal standard remedy for colds. It is dependable and safe.

Royals Hand 6-0 Setback To Yellow Jackets

The Yellow Jackets, who by four consecutive victories over upstate football teams, gained a lofty position among the outstanding eleven of this part of the state, were humbled from their pinnacle Thanksgiving Day at the Kingston Fair Grounds by the Schenectady Royals. The score was 6-0.

A ragged offensive spelled defeat for Captain Hoffman's side, who also fell down in their brand of football strategy when endeavoring to outguess the smart and alert Schenectady players. The upstater displayed a threatening spirit right after the opening whistle and the game was not very old before the Royals scored a touchdown.

The big blow came after the game had been under way about five minutes. After the exchange of punts Kingston had the ball on their own 25 yard line. Beany dropped back to punt and he booted the ball to the Royals 48 yard line. Here Holbrook gathered in the pigskin and started on the outstanding run of the game. His interference blotted out the Jacket tacklers and 52 yards was covered by this fast back before he reached the final white mark for that lone touchdown which made them triumphant.

The upstate team pounded the Yellow Jacket line in a most effective way from the beginning. They made many a good march and at the same time prevented the Jackets from doing so. The Royals defense contained a pair of tackles that were the best that played on the grounds this season. With Bousie on the right side of the line in the tackle position and Weaver on the left, the fast ball carriers of the Kingston aggregation were stopped time and time again by these men, who at all times were the bright lights in stopping the Jackets.

Kingston's defeat was not the only outcome of the strong Royal attack. Earl Terwilliger and Phil McDonald, two first string tackles of the eleven, were injured. Terwilliger had his left arm broken and McDonald came out of the fray with an injured shoulder.

Meeting Tonight.
The Yellow Jackets will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the American Legion Memorial Building. Very important business will come up so every member of the team is asked to be present.

Notre Dame and Army Eleven to Battle Saturday

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—New York became the center of the football universe today as Notre Dame and the Army moved toward Yankee Stadium for their annual battle tomorrow. Although the unattached public was practically shut out in the distribution of 4,000 seats the Irish-Cadet classic this year seemed to grip the imagination of football followers in the city to a greater degree than in any previous season.

The Notre Dame team was due for an early arrival here today and a practice session at the Yankee Stadium in the afternoon. The Cadets contented themselves with a program which called for shift of their forces from West Point to Travers Island, N. Y., the country home of the New York Athletic Club on Long Island Sound. The Army was to have a light drill and to remain in seclusion on the island until just before game time.

Although facing the game without the services of Tim Moynihan, star center, Notre Dame remained a prohibitive favorite over the Eastern eleven, but the Cadets clung to the hope of an upset to spoil the up-to-now perfect record of their dearest foe.

Despite the apparent disparity in the strength of the teams, tickets were practically unobtainable at any price. Speculators held very few and these were quoted all the way up to $100 a pair, with others holding out for even more money.

Still other important games will be played in the Atlantic coast sector tomorrow. Indications at Philadelphia are that almost 70,000 will enter Franklin Field to watch the Navy and Dartmouth close their season at Villa Nova and Temple struggle before another large crowd in another section of the same city.

Saugerties Five Drop Contest to Spinnys Five

Spinnys Five had an easy time romping to a 54-24 victory over the Saugerties Community Five Thursday night at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen. The Radio boys got a good start and held the lead throughout the tilt. The half-time score was 22-14.

"Big" Van Etten got away from Jeggars, right guard of the Saugerties outfit, for a total of 26 points, making him king of the scoring column. Don Joyce, who is a forward mate of "Big's," trailed him with 14 markers. Riley with 11 took the tallying honors of the Community Hoops.

Saturday night the Port Eweners will go to Monticello, and Monday will display their wares at Monroe. The Radio team expects a tough time in both games.

Next Thursday at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, the regular weekly game will bring the McCormack Five of Poughkeepsie against the Spinnys outfit. It is estimated that a large gathering will witness the tilt as the Poughkeepsians have a big following and Port Ewen and Kingston fans are giving good support to the Radio team.

After the game Naisenhelder's Commanders will furnish music for dancing from 10 to 12 o'clock. This will be a novelty. According to present arrangements the Commanders will be at Pythian Hall every Thursday for the remainder of the basketball season.

Women Fliers Forced to Land

Los Angeles, Nov. 22 (AP).—The third attempt of Bobbie Trout of Los Angeles and Elmer Smith of New York to establish a new record for endurance here failed today when lack of fuel forced them to land their plane at 3:45 a. m. They had been in the air 42 hours and 5 minutes.

A "frozen" engine in the refueling plane, interrupting a contact for transfer of gasoline, doomed to failure the girl's third attempt on the world endurance mark of 47 1/2 hours, 21 minutes, 55 seconds.

The refueling plane developed trouble and landed precipitately in a plowed field, its engine beyond repair.

The girls quickly trailed their plane along behind, hanging onto the wires, as the refueling plane dived wildly to earth, and did not get away until they were almost in the tree-tops.

The 42 hours and 5 minutes is a record for women, however, as they are the first women fliers to make a refueling endurance flight.

Present plans are for the girls to take off tomorrow for another attempt.

Glenford Resident Makes A Remarkable Statement

Tells Of Splendid Relief From Health Troubles Through
Using Treatment of Dr. French's Nu-Erb.

A very remarkable story in which the splendid merit of Dr. French's Nu-Erb is evidenced, has recently been told by Mr. James Stoutenburg, Glenford, N. Y., near Kingston. Similar statements are being made daily regarding this famous medicine and persons who suffer from disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver or bowels, rheumatism, neuritis or nervousness could do nothing better than give Nu-Erb a trial, for its pure herbal juices acting in a perfectly natural way, restore these vital organs to a normal action and eliminate poisonous waste matters from the system.

"Nu-Erb has helped me in so many ways and after everything else had failed that I consider it my duty to recommend it," said Mr. Stoutenburg. "For more than two years, I have been a victim to stomach, kidney and liver troubles. Gas formed in my stomach after every meal causing me hours of distress and pain. My kidneys were in a weakened condition. My bowels would not move without the aid of laxatives and my nerves seemed to be all on edge. I was irritable, restless, slept poorly at night and I had a very poor appetite.

"Nu-Erb seemed to go right to the spot that was causing all my trouble and in just a few weeks, my stomach has improved so that I can eat just anything and have no trouble with indigestion or gas. My kidneys are apparently in a normal condition again, my liver is active and my bowels are moving regularly every day. Nu-Erb has also strengthened my nerves. I sleep soundly all night long. I have a splendid appetite and I have more strength and energy than I have had for many years. I am glad to endorse such a medicine and I have already recommended it to several of my friends and members of my family."

McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall street, is headquarters in Kingston for Dr. French's Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

CATCHES RATTLES WITH BARE HANDS

Village Won't Believe It, So
He Shows Them.

De Soto, Wis.—Barehanded catching of live rattlesnakes is no trick for Joseph Wilson, known in this Mississippi river village as "The rattlesnake king." He has been handling the poisonous reptiles many years, but never has a rattler bitten him.

Wilson displays the forked stick or "hook" of rattlesnakes in this rock-hill region and to take live specimens. The ordinary method is to pin the rattlers with a stick and transfer them to a heavy bag.

So such slow and careful methods for the "king." He finds a rattler den and reaches in and picks them up about the same as another person would pick up puppies or kittens. Whether they are coiled or not makes no difference to him.

Wilson asserts that not one of the thousands of rattlesnakes he has killed or taken alive has ever struck at him.

Recently Wilson gave the villagers a demonstration that sent chills running up and down their spines. He had found a big den of snakes on a rocky promontory just below the village. He had an order for three big snakes for a museum, so he left the three largest of the den alive while he killed thirty-odd others and clipped off their tails for the bounty.

With one of the big snakes draped around his neck and another around each bare arm, the snake catcher walked into the village. He rubbed the live snake's head against his cheeks, put them down his trouser legs and into the bosom of his shirt, let them coil at his feet and picked them up, and so on, for fully an hour.

Dr. A. T. Andrews was skeptical and accused Wilson of hoarding the crowd. The snake catcher borrowed a pencil and opened the snakes' mouths to let the doctor examine fangs and poison sacs.

The exhibition was too much for Dr. Soto townspeople and the result was a request by the village board that Wilson confine his snake stunts to the area outside the limits.

Drawbridge Holds no Thrills for Lumberjack

Green Bay, Wis.—Being caught on a drawbridge when the spans were lifted to allow a boat to pass through the draw did not bother an unidentified lumberjack here at all. He perched himself upon a girder, calmly watched the boat pass, waited until the bridge was lowered, tipped the bridge tender 50 cents for no reason whatever and continued on his way.

Carinne Griffith

One million dollars' insurance for the voice of Carinne Griffith was written when this popular player was recently given a new contract specifying that she appear only in talking pictures. The insurance was decided upon when Miss Griffith was filming the scenes for "The Divine Lady," in which she was called upon to play the harp and sing old English songs of the period.

Why We Do What We Do

by H. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LOOK UP TO SOME, LOOK DOWN ON OTHERS

IT IS a common human trait to look up to some and look down on others. We look up to those who have some advantage over us—in wealth, social position, skill, learning, personal beauty—anything. Envy is the chief urge. We would look up to no one unless we envy him, and are eager to get into his class.

This envy may be quite sincere and without ill will towards those whom we envy. In fact we envy because we are overcome by a sense of inferiority in some particular. The people we envy exert a mysterious power over us. We often admire them and try to emulate their distinguishing characteristic. It may not be as strong as hero worship in most cases, for it is not always the man that we envy so much as his superior position and power that we would like to secure for ourselves.

We cultivate those we look up to. There is a certain satisfaction in hobnobbing with people a little above our station in life. Physical proximity is unconsciously interpreted to mean a closeness in quality. One man naively boasted that he sat very close to a celebrity at a banquet. This made him feel that he was not very far removed from this man's greatness.

In a democracy the people laugh at the idea of a caste system such as exists in India and the titles of nobility and other purely social class distinctions. These seem ridiculous to us because they appear to be based on artificial distinctions. We prefer the ideal situation of basing superiority and class distinctions on character and ability.

The motive back of it all, however, remains the same. Human beings the world over look up to some and look down on others regardless of the standards used. We do this to satisfy the double-barreled impulse of self-assertion and self-abasement.

HOW STORY OF STOCKS IS TOLD

Many Men and Machines Used, But Faster System Is Coming.

New York.—The inadequacy of the present stock ticker—that complicated apparatus which flashes the news of transactions on the floors of the exchange to brokers' offices all over the country—was again forcibly demonstrated recently when all Wall Street's trading records were smashed. One day, for instance, when 10,410,000 shares were traded in on the New York Stock Exchange, the tape sent out its last price at 5:32 o'clock for a market which closed at three. On a previous day the last transaction was recorded after seven o'clock. Yet the present system and apparatus is considered a marvel of ingenuity, for many steps are involved between the time the customer places his order and the time when news of the completed transaction is flashed far and wide.

Course of a Transaction.

The customer telephones a "customer" man at his brokerage office, ordering, say, 100 shares of United States Steel at the market. This is jotted down on a slip of paper—"Buy 100 X stl"—and sent to the brokerage wire room. Here a telephone call is made to the floor of the Stock Exchange, calling for the "floor member" of the firm. The floor member's number is shown on one of the huge annunciator boards, calling him to the telephone. Getting the order, he goes to the Steel post, may try to get a better price than that which is at the moment ruling for the stock, gives his offers in fractions of a dollar until another broker says "Sold."

The transaction is then made, each man jotting it down and sending it to his firm for recording. Then comes the business of flashing the news of the sale. Record of the sale is made by reporters, employees of the New York Stock Exchange. The reporter writes on a slip of paper the stock, number of shares and price. He takes the record to the nearest of six ticker units located at different sections of the floor. Here are a number of men who operate keyboards resembling typewriter keyboards. They take down the transaction, punching keys which perforate a tape.

How the Ticker Works.

The tape is passed through boxes that have teeth that make contact where there are holes, or fail to make contact where the tape is unperforated. A little wheel on which is inscribed all the letters of the alphabet and numbers and fractions of numbers receives electrical impulses from the perforated tape and thus selects the characters which are to be printed to make the transaction known to the world.

In the gallery of the Stock Exchange is another group of men who work at a control board and whose business it is to watch over the recording by the floor operators, make corrections if necessary, and keep one unit of the ticker system from getting ahead of the others. About five transactions are taken from one unit, then five from the next, and in order they are sent along by underground cable to an office at 22 Broadway. If one unit is found to be five minutes behind the actual market transactions and another unit seven minutes behind, time is given to the lagging one to catch up. Electrical impulses are then carried to brokerage offices maintaining the service in Lower Manhattan south of Chambers street, about 3,500 in all. The Western Union Telegraph company sends the quotations to about 4,000 other offices, located in New York above Chambers street, in other parts of the country and abroad. Machines at the brokerage offices, using a tape of a cellulose compound, reflect the prices as they appear on a lighted screen.

The New Ticker.

At the present time the Stock Exchange is using two types of transmitting tickers, a new type having been brought out about a year ago. The latter, according to the New York Quotation company, is capable of keeping records of transactions up to the minute on a 7,000,000-share day, provided the sales are fairly evenly divided, that is, provided there are no great peaks of trading. The receiving part of this new ticker—labeled down to the price of the old ticker—has been installed in about 300 downtown offices, and more are being put in as rapidly as possible. But until all the offices—some 10,000—are equipped with the new tickers, it cannot be used at its high speed by the brokers, for some would then get quotations ahead of others.

The new machines will print about 300 impressions a minute simultaneously all over the country, while the old machine prints only about 200 characters a minute. The mechanical difference between the two is that the old ticker stops its selection of characters while it is printing a character, whereas the new "Teletype" prints and selects at the same time.

Driven by Motor.

The new ticker comprises an electric motor whose speed is controlled by an adjustable governor. The motor drives two shafts, a selecting shaft and a printing shaft. The characters to be printed are determined by the conjoint action of the selecting shaft and a controlling magnet operated by a transmitter. During a revolution of the selecting shaft it connects a series of six latches to a line magnet operated by the transmitter. If the magnet is operated at the time when any latch is connected thereto, the latch will be tripped. But, if the line magnet is not operated at this time, the latch will not be tripped. The operation of the magnet is controlled directly by the transmitter by means of the perforations in the tape previously prepared by means of the operators. For example, if in the tape the first and second latches are perforated, thereby selecting the letter A. When rotation is completed the selection is transferred to a set of selecting disks which release the type wheel driven by the other shaft and set a stop. This stops the type wheel at the letter A in a printing position, where it is printed by the printing shaft. In the meanwhile the selecting shaft has been started in rotation to select the next desired character.

Wife's Trombone Drives Him to Commit Assault

Cleveland, Ohio.—George Wilson, thirty-four, decided he was a "trombone widower." He resented being that and became active about it. He was arraigned before Municipal Judge Joseph Sawicki on a charge of assault and battery against his wife. Wilson inflicted a flesh wound on his partner, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson. He used a pair of scissors because she played the trombone all day and went to musicals where she could get a line on new trombone selections to play at night at home. "She played and played and played—and nearly drove me crazy," Wilson told the judge. "Suddenly, I couldn't stand it any more. When she hit a high one the other day, couldn't help myself. Not that I don't like trombones, Judge, but she overdid it."

The judge told Wilson to take his choice—the trombone or the workhouse.

"I'll get some cotton to put in my ears," he said sadly.

Humble Cow Looked On as Evidence of Wealth

In the early centuries the cow was looked upon as a source of wealth as well as food. One of the first words for money was "pecunia," from the Greek word "pecus," meaning cattle or herd, and the first coins made in Greece and Rome were stamped with the cow's head. Another interesting connection between cattle and gold is found in the story of the discovery of gold in California. People came overland by pack train, around the Isthmus of Panama, and in sailing vessels around the Horn. More people meant more cows and to meet the growing demand, large numbers of cows were brought from Kentucky and England. In the early mining days these sold for $300 to $500 a head—so a cow was almost as good as a gold mine.—Kansas City Times.

When Sails Boat Steam

When the steamer Enterprise, commanded by Capt. James Henry Johnston, English, pioneer navigator, reached the Cape of Good Hope on October 13, 1825, it is recorded that "a great crowd gathered on the shore to admire the wondrous object that could move at will without regard to the direction of the wind and to the accomplishment, it must be said, of a mighty puffing and volume of smoke."

The Enterprise, which had left Falmouth, England, on August 16 for Calcutta took so long (113 days) to reach her destination that every one, including her captain, was disappointed for under favorable conditions the great sailing ships, at less expense, could make the voyage to Calcutta in 30 days.

Dual Tragedy on Thanksgiving Day

Chicago, No. 15 (AP).—Two motives were offered today to explain the Thanksgiving Day double tragedy in the gold coast apartment of the James Barrett Pauler. Ill health and marital issues.

Pauler shot his wife as she sat working a crossword puzzle. He then entered the bathroom and killed himself with the same revolver.

Both had been in ill health for some time, and there was evidence that they had suffered heavy losses in the stock market. There was nothing, however, to indicate that murder and suicide had been contemplated.

Pauler's physician did not believe that the present state of Pauler's health was such as to lead him to seek release by death.

Likewise, a cursory examination of the Pauler's stock accounts did not indicate that their losses had been ruinous, even though they were considerable.

The couple were to have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Bode, for Thanksgiving dinner. Mrs. Pauler was fully dressed and apparently had started to work the crossword puzzle while waiting for her husband to finish shaving.

Galileo's Discovery

It is recorded that Galileo was one evening in the cathedral of Pisa. The swinging of a high chandelier caught his attention, and he watched it closely as its distance of travel diminished. Suddenly he observed a significant fact—no matter how wide the arc described by the chandelier, the time consumed in one complete oscillation was always the same. From this observation came the construction of a clock, the forerunner of the modern pendulum timepieces.

Alarming Moment

Eight-year-old Barbara had spent a happy afternoon on the shores of Lake Wauwasee, gathering live muskies, hitherto unknown to her. She took them up to her room, and evidently the night light that was left burning when she went to bed stimulated the captive to action, for her mother heard her calling in great alarm: "O, mother, come here! Those shells opened their mouths at me!"—Indianapolis News.

Finding Key of Music

Every key signature stands for two keys, a major and its relative minor. This is determined by the chords, and if in a minor key the accidental must appear to define the leading note. The last note in the bass is almost always the key note.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all our friends and relatives for their kindness shown us during the illness and at time of death of the late August Graff, also for the many beautiful floral tributes.

Signed,
MRS. LOUISA GRAFF AND FAMILY.

Tweed and Velvet Lapin Make Chic Combination

The combination of tweed and velvet lapin fur is important in this season's suit mode. This suit combines these materials in the charming silhouette of three-quarter length coat and flared skirt with the forward movement.

Matching Silk Is Used to Line New Handbags

Perhaps you should never look at a gift horse in the mouth—and yet if you present your sister or your aunt, your mother or your daughter with one of the new bags, the chances are that after she has given one appraising glance at the outside she will look inside to examine the lining, the mirror, the coin purse and the various pockets and flaps.

Almost all of the new bags, written a fashion correspondent in the Washington Star, are lined with machine silk, and the flaps and pockets are often finished with a narrow binding of leather. Even flat bags of the envelope sort are made with sufficient breadth within so that they will not bulge even when carrying the usual collection of small accessories.

Handbags are among the most interesting details of autumn dress. The most noticeable thing about them is that they are simple, serviceable, practical and very smart.

There are, of course, bags of beads and velvet, chiffon and embroidery for evening and elaborate afternoon. But for daytime wear there are all sorts of leather bags, a color and kind to match every suit and frock and coat in anybody's wardrobe.

The best thing about these smart bags is that one may be used with several frocks. They are made of good leather, in barely less substantial shades of every color, brown from lightest to darkest, through all ranges of tan and beige, buff and cream; greens and blues and maroons, or any color to go with any fabric.

There are pouch bags of leather, with metal frames or leather-covered frames or composition frames. There are envelope bags with openings in either unexpected places. Little bags that look over at the bottom to secure the opening of zippered side flaps or three or four flaps all following the same unusual outline of angles or curves.

There are capacious pockets in the handbags of the day, for even the slim, flat envelopes are so made that they have an unexpected holding capacity.

Clasps and fastenings are interesting in the new handbags. They are made of composition in all colors and of metal. Buttons, leather covered or of composition, are used to hold some of the bags shut.

Dainty New Jewelry Is Made of Marcassite

A new use of a new medium, marcassite set with real stones, is seen in an outstanding bit of jewelry, wrought in as quaintly old-fashioned a design and spirit as though it had come straight from the naive age of samplers, lace pantalettes and paper-dolled nosegays. The background is covered solidly with tiny flat marquerites, each flower as stiff and fitted neatly against the next as though some painstaking child had placed them so.

The petals are made of marcassite, and the prim centers are of halved round stones and size of shot, coral in one case and topaz in another. The design serves as the decoration for a ring; in a marquise shape, an inch long; for a daisy chain necklace and for an earring.

Pyralis, a new composition material used for modernistic jewelry in inexpensive forms, resembles crystal, but has the advantage of being molded rather than ground.

Its chief charm comes from an odd faulting which gives a clouded effect through it like flowers seen in a clear pool. It is brought out in natural and amber shades, which show off the clouding to best advantage.

It's great to be an all-American but there's a lot of luck in it. A fellow happens to play on a championship team in a big circuit, or he has a good day when the "picker" is in the stands, and he's on. Other fellows, far better players, but less lucky never draw the prize.

Consider Hank Bruder up at Northwestern. Early in the fall Dick Hanley remarked: "Bruder's our all-conference; he's our all-American." But Hank won't be either, because he broke his leg in the first big game, and for the second year of his career he was out of the running. Next year he may get hurt again, or happen to have a poor season on a weak team, and his chance is gone.

Wisdom

Who is wise? He that learns from every one. Who is powerful? He that governs his passions. Who is rich? He that is content. Who is that? Nobody. —Franklin.

Lost Children Found by Noise in Quincy, Mass.

Quincy, Mass.—Noise of bells, in stead of the customary quiet and methodical investigation, characterized the city's system of finding lost children.

Simultaneously, the fire alarm with its warning bells at busy street intersections tap out the "lost child alarm," consisting of five rings twice repeated.

Police and firemen then course through the city, relating to the interested citizenry details of the disappearance and a description of the missing child.

According to city authorities, the novel system has proved almost 100 per cent efficient.

Quarrel Over Bottle of Cream Leads to Death

Mexico City.—A quarrel over the privilege of buying the only bottle of cream in a little shop in Guadalupe led to the death of a Chinese.

After furiously attempting to outbid each other, a fight started which was transferred to the street. Dam with his revolver attempted to frighten Najer by firing into the air. The battle then passed into a butcher shop where Najer seized a knife and stabbed the Oriental three times.

As he fled Dam fired into the body of his opponent. Both were taken to a hospital, where the Chinese died almost immediately.

Male and Donkey Still Hold Their Own in Spain

Madrid.—The horse-drawn carriage still makes in Spain a stand against the encroachment of the automobile. It is a living fact.

In the capital some old families, it also possessed of wealth, continue to keep their grand carriage and far-banded steeds, their liveried coachmen and footmen, and drive of after scenes in the parks.

But the horses for which Spain was famous, whose ancestors went to Mexico with Cortez and whose increase populated the western plains, are seen less and less, as taxis hook through the streets of Spanish cities.

However, the humble mule and donkey still hold their own. They plod along just as patiently and unmercifully over every road and high way, still packing or pulling incredible loads, still being caused constantly in the ancient, approved fashion of muleteers the world over.

Clinics to Ward Off Diphtheria

The necessity of holding the series of free diphtheria clinics being arranged by Dr. L. E. Sanford, city health officer, is shown by the fact that so far this month four cases of diphtheria have been reported in Kingston. Three of the cases are children and the other an adult.

Wednesday afternoon the last of the series of clinics at the Mill street engine house was held. There were 124 children registered there of which number 77 have completed the treatment, and the remainder will be attended at the clinic to be held at the city hall on Monday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. These clinics are free and patients who desire to have their children immunized from diphtheria should make it a point to attend.

Season of Happiness Happiness is in taste and not in things; and it is by having what we love that we are happy, not by having what others find acceptable. —Richardson.

Paper From Cornstalks Making paper from cornstalks isn't a new idea; as long ago as 1862 a patent was granted to John Blackie and Burgess Allmon, two Jerseymen, to make paper from corn husks.

If you can't be with them at Christmas time there's one substitute they will appreciate—Your Photograph—the most personal of all gifts.

Market For Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets).—The cold weather has curtailed the demand for tomatoes, but wholesale price changes on fancy tomatoes were unimportant today. Receipts were moderate. The very best consignments from California, which were at $2.50-$3.15, occasioned a fall of about 25 percent. Green and offerings otherwise unimportant brought $1.25-$2. The importation of tomatoes has started from Mexico, but the plantations there as well as the Bahama Islands are reduced to about half of last year's.

The shipments of tomatoes for the entire country last week decreased to 194 cars, the chief source of supply being California and Southern Texas. State white cabbage was steady; red was firmer. Supplies were fairly liberal and trading was moderate. Shipping business on which Danish was transacted at $35-$40 per ton and on red at $34-$44. Fall or seed crop, white cabbage of the pointed variety from South Carolina sold at $35-$41.25 per 1 1/2 bushel hamper. Shipments of cabbage for the country last week decreased slightly to 425 cars, of which New York furnished 299 and Wisconsin 226. Fairly heavy movement of second crop cabbage was reported from South Carolina.

The price trend of domestic yellow onions was again upward. Arrivals were moderate and trading was more active. The very finest changed hands in carlots at $2.25 per sack of 100 pounds. A survey of cold storage warehouses in New York city and vicinity showed onion holdings totaled 3,445 crates of Spanish onions and 12,165 fifty-pound sacks and 2,643 hundred-pound sacks of domestic stock.

The carlot movement of 25 fruits and vegetables for the country during the previous week was down to the moderate volume of 14,820 cars. Potatoes totaled 2,650; apples, 2,550; sweet potatoes, 450; celery, 325; lettuce 770 and cabbage 625 cars.

Coconut Propagation. Coconuts are propagated differently from almost any form of fruit or nut. The coconut, as it forms in the outer hull, is buried in the ground, and the embryo gains nourishment first from the coconut milk, and as the growth of the plant advances the white meat which we eat becomes soft and spongy and also feeds the young plant. After a certain stage of development has been reached small roots reach out into the ground, and by the time they are sufficiently long and strong enough to feed the nourishment to the plant from the earth the original coconut has entirely disintegrated.

Milton and Maud. Much depends upon when and where you read a book. In the five or six impatient minutes before the dinner is quite ready, who would think of taking up the "Faerie Queene" for a stop gap, or a volume of Bishop Andrew's sermons?

The Gold Myth

All the gold in the world can never produce a fine impulse. No alchemy can extract a penny from a pile of business. The world's highest thought and best feeling is far from being always found linked up with great money possessions. We can get life's bottom out of money, but not life's top things. The money illusion is a very subtle thing. We all share in it in a greater or less degree. A little money helps happiness by relieving a man of anxiety about his daily bread, but too much money is worse than too little. As Einstein said, it is better to live in a small house, and have Warwick castle to be associated at, than to live in Warwick castle and have nothing to be astonished at.

The mischief of noise in modern life, especially in town life, is notorious and admitted by all; but the concrete evidence is extremely hard to come by, observes the British Medical Journal. It cannot be shown on the stage of a microscope or in a jar of spirit, nor can the effects of noise on the nervous system be satisfactorily separated from the many other noxious results of modern life. The police cannot lay hands upon a noise, however tremendous it may be, so as to bring it before a magistrate for condemnation until they are equipped with standard recording instruments. Indeed, the question of definition of noxious noises and the distinction of harmful from harmless sounds is one of the fundamental difficulties of the whole matter.

Whenever a man makes the front page some dancing girl turns up to sue him for something, says the Los Angeles Times. No sooner is the engagement of an eastern performer to the Hollywood pet announced than a Pennsylvania fairy rushes into court asking for breach of promise. She thinks he snubbed her once. Another vaudeville girl wants $250,000 damages because she has been slightly mentioned by her former dancing partner. Any time an aviator hangs out a new record he may be met when he comes back to earth by a greedy little chorus girl with a court summons. The girls crave gold or glory and care not which. Yet they grow indignant at being described as gold diggers.

After a decade during which women have looked like pencils or pillar-boxes it is a delight to find them looking once more like women, and to have all the ancient poetic images of the female form again coming true, says the London Evening Journal. It is undoubtedly prettier that rapturous admirers should be reminded of Greek vases by the appearance of the ladies of their choice than that they should have to recall a mere coffee canister. But the revival has its dangers, since, if carried to extremes, it will bring back tight lacing and with it all the ills that went with that barbarous mode.

Airplane pilots and passengers are warned to be careful about where they throw their "smokes." Hunters, campers and motorists long have been on the list of forest fire suspects. Now tests from a forest patrol plane in the Far West have shown that a large percentage of lighted cigars and cigarettes, dropped from altitudes of 500 to 1,000 feet, are still burning when they reach the ground. Hereafter the western airmen will be asked to exercise the same care in disposal of their discarded "smokes" as is demanded of their smoking brothers in motor cars and camps.

When a man finds a recipe for contentment and joy it simply means that he has found a means of satisfying himself, and perhaps others of similar mental and physical constitution. Most men and women find it necessary to work out formulas of their own in harmony with their temperament and environment. But there are millions who do not find even this a practical suggestion.

It is said that the per capita book sales in this country are somewhat less than one book each year. This must be very depressing to those in the book business, but they'll just have to be patient. We're busy just now making every family in America a two-car family. When that is accomplished, then we'll see about the two-book families.

Great inventions were encouraged in order to promote the comfort of humanity. Even that recent achievement, television, is no exception to the general rule that where there is a great invention, there will be a correspondingly large lawsuit.

A Berlin specialist finds that human ugliness is waste. Well, you can't say that the movies and the revues aren't doing their best in the cause of retrenchment.

Conservatism is almost bound to be more or less stupid; but it is any more stupid than those who produce stuff that deliberately invites it, and then save because they are shy?

How I Won All - Night Sleep

Remarkable Story of Well-Known Lady Who Refused to Let Her Kidneys Torture Her For Life—Reveals What Mexican Plant Compound Did For Her—Great Victory for Mexa Kava.

Getting Up Nights Curbed

Suppose you had to get up out of a warm bed night after night to relieve your kidneys—suppose you went through torture every time you had a bladder passage—suppose your legs and feet were stiff and swollen, your head throbbing with pain, you were getting weaker and weaker—all due to insufficient kidney elimination. Suppose you had thrown away large sums of money on all sorts of tonics and patent medicines without results, and were going from bad to worse, what would you do? Such was the problem of Mrs. Clara Ritz, who says: "I was told my kidneys might torture me for life. I was simply worried. I felt like a woman of 50. As if this were not enough, I lost my appetite and food soured in my stomach and lay like a stone to press against my heart, which was caused by my bowels being constipated at times."

In despair I finally spoke to a nurse who explained all about a great Mexican plant compound, called Mexa Kava. I had read about Mexa Kava in the paper, and to do any more than the other things I had tried. I decided to try it—not expecting it. Imagine my great joy for the night soon after when I was able to sleep without those disturbing night-calls! I noticed a general feeling of strength, I was looking better. Everybody marveled at my change.

"To-day I eat fine, do all my own work and feel like a new woman. I feel I owe a great debt to Mexa Kava and have told many others about it. I can recommend Mexa Kava from the bottom of my heart."

Such sincere friends that Mexa Kava wins are not just accidents, but the result of a compound which has such a beneficial action that countless thousands of women everywhere tell stories even more amazing than this one.

Do not confuse Mexa Kava with ordinary patent medicines. It contains genuine Mexican Maguey Plant Sap and other herbal extracts from all over the world. You use Mexa Kava on the strength of what it has done—not on mere promises. Call today at the Mexa Kava drug stores mentioned and receive FREE a valuable diet booklet given with each package.

The more often you urinate, the less you may be urinating may seem impossible. But convince yourself that it may be true in your own case.

For the next 24 hours, keep the urine you pass, in a bottle or similar container. If it is less than 1 1/2 quarts start taking Mexa Kava. After one week, repeat the test and see how much more urine you are passing.

You may notice that the urine is lighter in color, and it has lost its foul smell.

Before your own eyes, you see the actual results of Mexa Kava.

Mexa Kava Wins
Druggists' Praise
The true test of a product's merit is not how many people buy it the first time—but how many people come back for more. So effective and different is Mexa Kava that druggists tell of cases where grateful people buy a dozen packages of Mexa Kava at a time, for themselves and for their friends.
Call today and let Mexa Kava prove what it can do for you. Free diet booklet given with every package. Featured by McBride's Drug Store, 634 Broadway. Also sold in Sausages by Meyer Bros. Drug Store.

North Ireland

View of Londonderry, North Ireland.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

IRELAND'S north coast, shared by counties belonging to the state of Northern Ireland and by territory of the Irish Free State, is a picturesque portion of the Emerald Isle.

Parts of the region have been bones of contention between the two states, and the former Ulster counties of Monaghan, Donegal and Carrick have been added to the Free State.

Ulster, in the northeastern corner of the island, is in the odd position of being a part of Ireland which is in large part not Irish. Three hundred years ago the British King, James I., with the desire to Anglicize a part of Ireland, decided to "plant" a colony of English and Scotch. What is known as the Ulster Plantation followed.

The original plan of the king was to have English settlers dominant in Ulster; but he also permitted the Scotch to participate. English settlers were not easily interested, however, while the Scotch flocked in, making the Plantation dominantly Scottish.

By 1629 the population of Ulster consisted of some 80,000 inhabitants of Scotch blood, 5,000 of English ancestry, and 40,000 Irish. Altogether probably about 100,000 Scotsmen moved to Ulster. The English were soon merged with the Scotch but the Irish and Scotch strains remained almost entirely independent.

Ulster differs economically from the rest of Ireland. Either the Scotch immigrants had a greater propensity toward industry or their economic conditions were more favorable. At any rate Ulster has become the marked industrial region of Ireland while the remainder of the country, save in the larger cities, has not followed this line of development.

There is a religious difference, too, between North and South Ireland. Ireland, including Ulster, was Catholic. The Scotch immigrants brought their Presbyterian religion with them and it became firmly rooted. The English government favored the established Church of England and this is also strong in Ulster. The Presbyterians and the Episcopalians combined today tip the scale in Ulster to the side of Protestantism. But the margin is not great.

Along the Border.

The present border between the Irish Free State and the State of Northern Ireland, created in 1920 and 1921, extends through a rather rough country. Dundalk on the east coast, is just south of the line. Near this city is one of the passes through the hills used since earliest times in Ireland; and because of this situation Dundalk's neighborhood has been the scene of numerous battles. Farther west the boundary touches the long deep valley in which lies Lough Erne, the longest and the second largest lake in Ireland. The island's largest lake, Lough Neagh, lies in the heart of Ulster east of Belfast.

Formerly Ulster consisted of the northern tier of counties from coast to coast. When the two self-governing states were formed, however, Donegal, the largest of the Ulster counties, occupying the northwestern corner of Ireland, was attached to the Free State. The boundary of the State of Northern Ireland, therefore, does not now reach the Atlantic but turns at its southwestern corner a few miles short of the coast and runs northeastward between Donegal on the west and Fermanagh, Tyrone and Londonderry on the east to Lough Foyle, an inlet at the very top of the island. The State of Northern Ireland, therefore, occupies only a small segment in the northeastern corner of Ireland. Readjustment of the boundary as desired by the Free State would concentrate the northern division still closer into the northeast corner.

Though small in territory the State of Northern Ireland has a concentrated population. Its area is less than one-sixth that of Ireland but it contains more than a quarter of the island's inhabitants.

Donegal Warmed by Gulf Stream.

Although in the same latitude as northern Labrador, Donegal, the northwestern county of the Free State, enjoys the temperate climate of Virginia. This freedom from severe cold Donegal owes to one of the pleasant little pranks of the Gulf stream which washes its rocky coast and sends warm winds.

Although slightly smaller than Dela ware, Donegal was in ancient times the kingdom of the clan O'Donnell. Scattered throughout the county are many interesting ruined castles of the days of the Irish kings and later struggles with the Danes and the English. Parts of the county were not subdued until the last years of Queen Elizabeth's reign.

The main stream of immigration from Northern Ireland took place in the Nineteenth century. The genius of the newcomers for politics has made itself felt in local, state and national governments.

Mark on Ale Barrels

In the prints depicting the old tavern scenes the barrels of ale and like beverages are to be seen marked with the XX and XXX, and these markings were in use up to the time of the prohibition enactment, but their meaning is, and has been, a mystery to a great many persons. In the very remote times many of the distillers branded the brewing made under the supervision of monks. The bull often appearing on old ale signs indicates that the tavern was licensed under seal of the local abbe to sell only beer of domestic brewing. XX and XXX marks on the barrels of ale represent the monks' seals, guaranteeing the quality of the contents.

The county is a land of wild mountains and lakes, less than half of the surface being under cultivation. Its streams are noted for salmon and trout fishing. The coast is rocky and indented, bold headlands jutting out into the sea. Though boasting nearly 200 miles of coast line there are no good harbors from Killybegs in the south to Lough Swilly in the north. Lye, oats and potatoes are the chief crops of the valley farms. In Donegal cottages are woven some of the housewren tweeds for which Ireland is famous.

Attempts have been made in recent years to give impetus to the fishing industry along the coast. Fishermen still use the ancient coracle or skin boat without keel or rudder. They are easily handled in fine weather but become extremely dangerous when surf pounds against the rocks. These primitive boats probably represent the next step in navigation after the raft and have not changed during many centuries of use. Now fine seaworthy fishing craft are being introduced.

On the north shore of Donegal are several modern summer resorts with luxurious hotels frequented by Irish and English holiday makers because of the excellent golf and sea bathing to be had there. Two of the best known of these gathering places are Rosapenna and Portsalon. Further south Bundoran, with its scarred and weather-beaten cliffs, offers a splendid view of the sea. Here three galleons of the Spanish Armada, staggering homeward from the famous defeat in the English channel, were washed ashore in a storm and completely wrecked. Only a few antique cannon and anchors were recovered. When Philip of Spain learned of the destruction of his supposedly invincible fleet he is said to have philosophically remarked that he had sent them against the English, not the elements.

Seat of the O'Donnells.

Donegal town from the dawn of history has been the seat of the O'Donnell family. Their ruined castle, whose shell has been remarkably well preserved, is still the most interesting sight of the countryside. It remained in the hands of the O'Donnells until the days of Charles I when their line ran out and the castle passed to Sir Basil Brooke, an English Catholic supporter of the king. Donegal town is now chiefly noted for the Irish tweeds and soft steamer rugs which it exports.

Inhabitants of County Donegal are noted for their courtesy and quick intelligence. Though the district is poor, hospitality is universal and beggars are rare. Country customs hark back to ancient times. It is a common sight to see women riding pillion fashion on horseback, behind the men, and bare feet are not unusual. Though lying in the far northwest Donegal forms a part of the Free State, its population being largely of Celtic origin.

The United States has more than an academic interest in all that affects Ireland. Two of the most important streams of immigration that have reached America came from the island: one the so-called Scotch-Irish from Ulster; the other, the Irish from south of the Ulster line. The Scotch-Irish early felt the weight of repressive English laws both in the religious and economic fields. They began emigrating to America in large numbers during the latter part of the Eighteenth century and it is estimated that they made up one-sixth of all the colonists by the time of the American Revolution. They were prominent in that struggle and later became the frontiersmen, playing an important part in winning the Middle West and the West.

FARM POOLTRY

GREEN FEED BIG

WINTER DEMAND

Increases Egg Production and Is Profitable.

Green feed added to the laying hen's ration in winter has increased egg production and has proven profitable wherever used.

When the green feed pasture is exhausted with the coming of frost and cold weather, it is then necessary for the poultryman to provide such feed.

Recommendations of C. F. Parrish, poultry extension specialist at the North Carolina State college. "There is a wide variety of feeds that may be used to avoid monotony. Rape, alfalfa, clover, wheat, rye, barley, mangel, and other feeds may be used. Sprouted oats are also used effectively by some growers. The oats are fed when the sprout is about three inches long and make an excellent supplement to the scratch grain and mash."

Mr. Parrish says that it is not difficult to build a home-made out-sprouter. All that is needed is a number of trays with holes punched in the bottom to allow excess water to escape. The seed oats are spread thinly over the trays to prevent the formation of mold growth. Sprouted oats secured in this manner are fed at the rate of one to two ounces per day per hen. A good producing hen will consume from 25 to 30 pounds of this feed in a winter.

Hanging cabbage about 18 inches from the floor will afford the laying hen needed exercise and will give her the succulent green feed needed. Beets may be used the same way.

When it is impossible to supply green feed, cod-liver oil may be mixed with the mash or grain ration to supply the same food elements. In mixing this oil with the feed, Mr. Parrish suggests that a small amount of the feed be taken and the cod-liver oil worked in thoroughly and this used as a stock mixture with the remaining feed. One pint of the oil to each 100 pounds of feed is enough to use.

Lack of Water Causes Early Molt by Layers

Water supplies an important and indispensable part of the ration. Hens can go longer without feed than without water and still live.

The hen's body is made up of over one-half water and the eggs which she lays are approximately two-thirds water.

Heavily producing hens which are deprived of water often go into a molt, and that means a marked cutting down in egg production.

Since the fowls in the laying pen drink often, taking small quantities at a time, it is essential that proper provision be made so they may satisfy their thirst at all times.

Practice Culling All Seasons on Any Flock

"Culling should be practiced at all seasons of the year and on all stock when its use is advisable," says the Maryland experiment station. Any bird observed at any time which is sick or unthrifty should be removed from the flock at once. Delay in removing such birds often results in the spread of serious diseases throughout the flock. If such birds are in a serious condition they should be immediately disposed of by burying or burning.

Poultry Notes

The Bronze and White Holland breeds are popular.

The logical solution for raising poultry on any farm is a rotation of range areas.

The essentials of good winter quarters for poultry are that the place should be clean, dry, well-lighted and free from drafts.

Roosting drinking water for the hen with coal or wood is much cheaper than letting them heat it with food.

A shutter ventilator, or baffle, may be used in place of one such of a window to give better ventilation during the winter when the poultry house is closed.

The question of whether or not hens should be confined to the house during the winter is debated by poultrymen and diverse opinions are found among them.

Arranging roosts that they can be raised will give greater access to the droppings boards for cleaning.

A scratch-mash ration has been found better than an all-mash ration for hens, and even for chicks after they are six or eight weeks old.

Even when one is practicing a system of sanitation in regard to the range and yard, he should not overlook the fact that clean brooder houses and laying houses are vitally essential.

How About Their Slaughter?

"Mother," remarked an over-enthusiastic hen on the roosted street one afternoon, "I've just been thinking about your getting slaughtered and I think you'd better get ready for it."

AUTO FIXED FOR WINTER DRIVING

Good Advice on How to Prepare for Cold Weather.

The motorist can take advantage of the pleasant fall weather to check over his car or have his service station do so in order that it will be in proper condition to withstand the rigors of winter driving.

The following recommendations on putting the car in shape for winter are gleaned from an engineering bulletin:

Clean Chassis First.

The first step in the procedure is to clean the chassis, engine and body, as dirt can hide many defects.

Tighten all bolts and nuts. Check front wheels for proper alignment; remove caps and re-grease; adjust wheel bearings and replace hub caps.

Check steering gear for proper adjustment. Drain the old oil from the transmission and differential and pour into both about a quart of kerosene.

At the same time put in the radiator a few handfuls of salt soda and then drive the car two or three miles. The kerosene should then be drained from the transmission and differential and water drained from the radiator.

A winter grade lubricant recommended by the car manufacturer should then be put in the transmission and differential.

Inspect the rubber hose connections, replacing if necessary, after which the radiator should be filled with clean water; and at the first appearance of cold weather an anti-freeze solution should be added.

Next, drain oil from the engine; flush crankcase and put in a winter grade oil.

If the oil filter has been in use for 10,000 miles install a new cartridge. Examine Wiring.

Inspect wiring and clean contacts; oil generator and starting motor and clean the armatures and brushes; set generator charging rate ahead for winter driving; check breaker points for proper spacing; replace spark plugs if used more than 10,000 miles; if used less than this, clean them; adjust gaps; clean battery with ammonia water solution; tighten terminals and grease with vaseline; inspect water level and if gravity reading is low, recharge.

Oil and grease all parts that require it. Adjust brakes and relines if necessary.

The motorist should also examine the top of his car and will do much to preserve it if he will spend a few minutes in going over the top with a good grade of top dressing.

Many car manufacturers are now equipping cars with a summer and winter driving adjustment on the carburetors and the proper adjustment to the carburetor should be made at this time. The fuel and carburetor strainers should also be taken out and cleaned.

With these simple but highly essential adjustments, a winter of carefree driving should be enjoyed.

AUTO NOTES

Strong interest in horseshoe pitching proves that the horse is still influential. The auto tire pitching contest may arise later.

The same folks who wonder why the moth is such a darn fool as to fly into a flame, will try to beat a railroad train over a crossing.

Americans: "As Eastern women make a habit of collecting the tags given in various countries for traffic violations."

To speed funeral processions, the municipal council of Paris, France, has voted to supplant horse-drawn hearse by automobiles.

In the early days of the motor car, too, there were marvelous non-stop performances by beginners who didn't know how to stop off the power.

Makes Hoofbeats: Charles Darwin began a long series of experiments in 1881 which proved conclusively a fact stated as long ago as 1789, says Nature Magazine, that a better, healthier plant comes from seed produced when pollen is brought from another flower. Two of Darwin's pollen carriers are insects and wind.

MOTOR QUIZ

How Many Can You Answer?

Q. Does an oil filter remove crankcase dilution?

Ans. No. Its function is to remove dirt and foreign matter from the oil, which it does efficiently for 10,000 miles, after which the filtering unit must be renewed. This makes the filter as good as new again.

Q. Does all the oil pass through the filter?

Ans. Yes. In some filters the oil is completely filtered from four to eight times an hour.

Q. What causes discoloration of the oil even though the car is equipped with an oil filter and is it harmful?

Ans. Extremely small particles of carbon in the oil. No, it is not harmful.

Q. Is an oil filter bag likely to rupture?

Ans. No. Engineering tests have proved that it is able to withstand a pressure of 150 pounds to the square inch which is much higher than the pressure attained in the engine.

Temporary Repairs Made on Broken Tire Chains

If a driver should be so unfortunate as to break so many cross pieces of the tire chains that they will not remain in place around the wheel, the chains should be removed and wrapped around the tires as one would wrap a rope. This, of course, applies only when the car is stuck in the snow or in deep mud; for after getting under way, the cumbersome "lump" should be removed. Owners should get into the habit of repairing tire chains, the work requiring little effort. The garage makes a charge of 10 cents, even for one new link, which the wren can install in less than one minute with a chain tool which most supply stores offer, or which can be had from the chain manufacturer.

Traffic Jams and Joy Riders in Olden Days

There were traffic troubles and tolls and joy riders 100 years ago, when the automobile and bicycle belonged to the far future and the "iron horse" and trains were gazed upon in curiosity.

Newspapers of a century ago were filled with stories of traffic mishaps and careless drivers of stages.

"Back in the days when great-grandfathers rode, the authorities took serious counsel of such things as speedsters, road hogs, joy riders, drunken drivers—and of how females were enticed from their homes by the lure of the stage coach, and how pedestrians on the sidewalks were too frequently injured by recklessly driven wheelbarrows," declares a recent issue of the American Motorist.

Clamp Very Serviceable in Removing Car Dents

An ordinary iron C-clamp proves serviceable in many cases in removing dents from automobile fenders. To prevent damage to the finish, a wooden block of suitable size is placed under the mud guard and another on top of it at the point where the dent is located. These blocks should be of smooth, hard wood. The clamp is screwed tight as possible with the fingers. Then the clamp is rocked back and forth. The pressure and the motion slightly flatten the dent and the screw of the clamp can again be tightened. The operation is repeated until the dent is completely flattened out. ## Horn Is Neglected by Many Automobile Owners

Approximately 85 per cent of the owners of automobiles never oil their horns. Because the horn gives little trouble, little attention has been paid to it. The horn usually outlasts the car if conscientiously oiled. It is not necessary to oil it so frequently as the other mechanism of the car—twice a year being sufficient.

It takes little effort on the part of the motorist to be sure that his horn is always in operating condition.

Unnecessary Rattling: A court has decided that the wife in her house and the husband on the street can be held liable for the rattling of a car horn or bell.

A court decision was not necessary, but it is nice to know that questions were settled legally.

Historic Alamo
The Alamo is a Franciscan mission house, built about 1722. After 1733 it was used as an ecclesiastical school, and was renamed Fort Alamo. It consisted of an oblong plan, some two and a half acres in area, inclosed by a wall 5 feet high and 18 inches thick, a church, a hospital building, a convent and a walled courtyard about 100 feet square.

Accurate Building
In the great pyramid of Gizeh there are 2,300,000 stones. Their average weight is two and a half tons each, but some of them weigh 30 tons each. The builders displayed an accuracy almost equal to optician's work, but on a scale of acres instead of inches. The blocks were fitted and squared with an accuracy seldom equaled in building operations today.
